

LYCOMING

FALL 2011

MAGAZINE

REMINISCING

A look at Lycoming College's first 200 years

INSIDE

Networking in New York City

A conversation with Dr. John F. Piper Jr.

A LEGACY OF LEADERSHIP

A distinguished gathering of Lyscoming College's current and past leadership was realized Saturday, Oct. 15, during the 2011 Homecoming and Reunion Weekend. The assemblage, brought together as part of Lyscoming's ongoing bicentennial celebration, was a way to recognize the outstanding contributions and numerous years of service of several individuals who have played integral roles in shaping the College's recent history.

During the annual President's Dinner held that evening, President Dr. James E. Douthat paid tribute to the following individuals, who were formally introduced as honorary chairs of the College's bicentennial committee: the Rev. Dr. Frederick E. Blumer, president emeritus, who served from 1976-89; Arthur A. Haberberger '59, board chair emeritus; Peter R. Lynn '69, board chair; Robert L. Shangraw '58, emeritus chair; Harold H. Shreckengast Jr. '50, emeritus chair; and Bishop D. Frederick Wertz, president from 1955-68.

"We are here to welcome, applaud and give our gratitude to our honorary chairs, each of whom have played essential roles in creating Lyscoming College," said Douthat, who has served as the 14th president since 1989. "We are also here to acknowledge thousands of people, employees of the College, those who have supported the College financially, our alumni, the founders of the College, the city, and the families who got together in 1811 to petition for the first charter."

"Lyscoming College is the strong institution it is today not only because of the work of our honorary chairs, but because so many have given their work, their treasures, their hopes and their prayers for Lyscoming College."

Lyscoming leadership, from left: Arthur A. Haberberger '59, '50; Harold H. Shreckengast Jr. '50; the Rev. Dr. Frederick E. Blumer, the Rev. Dr. James E. Douthat, Peter R. Lynn '69, and Robert L. Shangraw '58. Not pictured: Bishop D. Frederick Wertz.

LYSCOMING COLLEGE

Board of Trustees	Administrative Cabinet	Mission Statement
Peter R. Lynn '69 (Chairman) Stanley W. Sloer '80 (Vice Chairman) Dale N. Krapp '67 (Secretary) Dr. William E. Evans '72 (Assistant Secretary) Ann S. Pepperman, Esquire (Assistant Secretary) Lawrence S. Allison Jr. '96 Dr. Brenda P. Alston-Mills '66 David R. Bahl, Esquire Hon. Marie White Bell '58 Dr. Robert L. Bender '59 John R. Bigger '66 Melvin H. Campbell Jr. '70 Jay W. Cleveland Sr. '88 Jay W. Cleveland Jr. '88 Dr. James E. Douthat Donald E. Falor '68 D. Mark Fultz '80 David D. Gathman '69 Nancy J. Gieniec '59 Arthur A. Haberberger '59 '11H (Chair Emeritus) Daniel R. Hawbaker Daniel R. Langdon '73 David B. Lee '61 Dr. Robert G. Little '63	Dr. James E. Douthat President Chip Edmunds '98 Vice President for College Advancement Dr. Sue S. Gaylor Vice President for Administration and Planning Dr. Daniel P. Miller Dean of Student Affairs James D. Spencer Vice President of Admissions and Financial Aid Dr. Philip W. Sprunger Acting Provost and Dean of the College	The mission of Lyscoming College is to provide a distinguished baccalaureate education in the liberal arts. This is achieved within a coeducational, supportive, residential setting through programs that develop communication and critical thinking skills; foster self-awareness while increasing receptivity to new concepts and perspectives; explore literary and scientific traditions; cultivate an aesthetic sensibility; elicit social responsibility; promote racial inclusiveness; gender equality and an appreciation of cultural diversity; and produce leadership for the institutions of society. Each student is encouraged to develop and strengthen virtues and traits of character that enable, the enoble and emancipate the human spirit while deepening commitment to those values that undergird civilization.

MAGAZINE STAFF

Jerry Rashid, editor
Director of College Relations

Murray Hanford
Publications Manager

Casey Spencer '05
College Relations Specialist

Joe Guistina
Sports Information Director

Amy Dowling '04
Director of Alumni Relations

Contributors
Lyscoming College Archives
Myles Biggs '12
Megan Frank '12
Nancy J. McCann
Cristina Sorrells '12

Class Notes
Terri Brewer, Casey Spencer '05

Printing
Prestige Color Inc.

Send comments or suggestions to:
Office of College Relations
Lyscoming College
700 College Place
Williamsport, PA 17701
(570) 321-4137
collegeterrelations@lyscoming.edu

Send address changes to:
Office of College Advancement
Lyscoming College
700 College Place
Williamsport, PA 17701

Give us a call
Area Code 570
College Switchboard 321-4000
Office of the President 321-4101
Academic Affairs 321-4102
Admissions 321-4026
Advancement 321-4347

Lyscoming Magazine is published three times a year by Lyscoming College. The views expressed in this magazine do not necessarily reflect the policies and positions of the College.

On the cover:
Class of 1932 baccalaureate service procession

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PAGE

8

On the Frontiers of American Education
A conversation with Dr. John F. Piper Jr., who recently completed his book detailing the College's 200-year history.

12

There's No Place Like Home
Recognizing the College's past would not be complete without revisiting bygone campus buildings, such as Old Main and Eveland Hall.

16

Serving a Greater Purpose
The Rev. R. Bruce Smay '49 has the distinct honor of being one of the first graduates of the newly-named Lyscoming College.

17

Paradise Found
Cristina Sorrells '12 provides a firsthand look at the College Archives.

18

Catching Up With the Chieftains
Nancy (Hall) Brunner '52 and Jessica Gough '07, recipients of the first and 56th Chieftain Award, respectively, continue to pursue knowledge.

DEPARTMENTS

- 2 Around the Quad
- 22 Warrior Athletics
- 24 Alumni News
- 28 Class Notes

AROUND THE QUAD

Douthat Details Progress of Lycoming College

As Lycoming College celebrates its bicentennial, President Dr. James E. Douthat opened the 2011-12 academic year by highlighting a sizeable incoming class, outstanding retention and a very favorable accreditation review during his State of the College address at the beginning of the fall semester.

The College's Class of 2015 features approximately 418 first-time students and 42 transfers. They come from all corners of the United States and 10 foreign countries, including Afghanistan, Saudi Arabia, Nigeria, Vietnam and China. The class has 15 valedictorians and salutatorians and many other students in the top percentiles of their high school classes.

"Equally exciting is the retention rate of our rising sophomores," said Douthat, who is in his 22nd year as the College's president. "We have two admissions goals at Lycoming. One is to continue to attract very good students. The other is to work with them to celebrate their graduation within four years. Preliminary retention figures for rising sophomores this year exceed 85 percent, which is a remarkable level of accomplishment on any campus in the country."

Douthat acknowledged that the robust enrollment and high retention numbers are driven by the combined efforts of the entire campus. He added that the solid enrollment also is a result of the thousands of alumni and friends who support the College financially, creating not only special programs and opportunities with their gifts, but underpinning millions of dollars in institutional financial aid.

Douthat explained that even in this incredibly difficult economy, Lycoming ended the 2010-11 fiscal year with more than $160 million in endowment funds under management. He said that despite tight operational budgets and cuts to the federal work-study program, the College must continue to meet the needs of its current students while preparing for the growing needs of students to come.

President James Douthat speaks during the 2011 New Student Convocation.

"These are interesting times with interesting challenges for all of higher education," Douthat told the faculty and staff. "Lycoming is very fortunate to have a strong student base. Good fortune is always more likely to arrive if it is backed by hard work and preparation."

This summer, Lycoming received the formal response from its Middle States accreditation review. Douthat announced that the College had met all 14 standards for reaccreditation and was fully reaccredited. "The financing of higher education is changing . . . driven in part by reductions in state and federal support for students at the same time that high unemployment and concerns about taking on more debt drive down the ability of families to pay for college," said Douthat. "For those reasons and others, the expenses side of higher education is also changing."

As for Lycoming, in such times of change, Douthat spoke of great challenges and great opportunities ahead.

"Our faculty and our board of trustees have already committed to a comprehensive review of our core curriculum, a task to be completed by academic year 2014-15," said Douthat. "What better place to start that review than through strengthening the ways we assess what we do. The challenge ahead is great, but Lycoming College is in a very strong position to ensure its future for at least another 200 years."

Lycoming Among Nation's Best College's

With high rankings by U.S. News & World Report, Forbes.com and The Princeton Review, Lycoming has firmly established itself as one of the nation's best colleges.

Lycoming is recognized as a Tier 1 institution by U.S. News in its 2012 edition of "America's Best Colleges." According to the publication, the nation's 252 liberal arts colleges focus almost exclusively on undergraduate education and award at least 50 percent of their degrees in the arts and sciences. Lycoming also ranks among "America's Best Colleges," according to Forbes.com and is recognized as one of the "Best in the Northeast" by The Princeton Review.

In addition, U.S. News ranks Lycoming 12th in the nation among liberal arts and sciences institutions in graduation rate when comparing actual graduation rate with the predicted rate. While the vast majority of Lycoming's students graduate in four years, data from the U.S. Department of Education also confirms Lycoming's six-year graduation rate of 70 percent to be very strong when compared to other schools. Nationally, the average six-year graduation rate at all private non-profit colleges and universities is 54 percent while Pennsylvania's privates average 65 percent. The average six-year graduation rate reported for all public universities in Pennsylvania is 53 percent.

"Lycoming College works hard to offer programs that keep students engaged and active both in and out of the classroom, and we are pleased to be recognized for our successes," said Dr. Phil Sprunger, acting provost and dean of the College. "The majority of our students graduate in four years and are off to the job market or graduate school faster than students from many other colleges and universities."

International Exchange Students Visit Lycoming

Sixteen student-athletes and four coaches from Japan visited campus in August while participating in the U.S. Department of State's first international sports exchange program. The student group consisted of teenage baseball and softball players, eight male and eight female, each of whom was affected by the March earthquake and tsunami.

During their two-week stay in the United States that began with a meeting with Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton and baseball Hall of Famer Cal Ripken Jr., they participated in baseball and softball clinics, saw a professional baseball game in Baltimore and attended the Little League World Series.

"The lives of the students and the teachers have been forever changed since March 11," said Chiaki Kotori, a native of Japan and director of institutional research at Lycoming, who coordinated the group's visit to the College. "A number of offices and individuals responded and showed their embracing hearts, which I think the group will long remember. It was our privilege to meet them, interact with them and learn first-hand about their courageous efforts to rebuild their own lives and the nation."

At Lycoming, the students and coaches, accompanied by members of the State Department, were welcomed to campus by President James Douthat and other College officials, received a tour of campus, enjoyed lunch, visited the campus store and participated in a question-and-answer session with Lycoming students about the College and American higher education.

David '73 and Carol '73 Schoch

Schoch named CEO of Ford Motor China

David L. Schoch '73 has been named chairman and CEO of Ford Motor China, according to Ford Motor Company. He also has been elected a company officer. In his new role, Schoch has direct responsibility for the operations and business leadership of Ford Motor China. Schoch is also a member of the Lycoming College Board of Trustees.

"We have put in place aggressive expansion plans for Ford in China," said Joe Hinrichs, group vice president and President, Ford Asia Pacific and Africa. "As Ford China enters into a phase of accelerated growth, Dave, with his unique combination of skills and experience, is well-suited to lead Ford China and take our expansion plans to the next level, including bringing four new plants online and launching 15 new vehicles by 2015. Dave's appointment greatly strengthens our leadership team in China."

Since joining Ford as a financial analyst in 1977, Schoch has held a variety of leadership positions. Most recently, he was controller. The Americas, a position he held since Sept. 1, 2009. Prior to that, Schoch was executive director, Ford Canada, Mexico and South America Operations. He also served as chief financial officer and vice president of strategic planning for Ford of Europe and chief financial officer of Ford Asia-Pacific Operations.

Schoch earned a bachelor's degree in business from Lycoming in 1973 and an MBA in finance from Temple University. Schoch and his wife, Carol (Marsland) '73, have three daughters.

International exchange students from Japan visited campus during their two-week excursion in the United States in August.

Dr. Marisa Macy

Macy Selected as Fulbright Specialist

Dr. Marisa Macy, assistant professor of education at Lycoming, has been selected to serve as an international expert in the Fulbright Specialist Program. The program awards grants to qualified U.S. faculty and professionals in select disciplines to engage in short-term collaborative two- to six-week projects at higher education institutions in more than 100 countries worldwide.

Macy will serve as a Fulbright international specialist in early childhood special education. For the next five years, she will offer her expertise, particularly in assessment, to other countries in need of assistance.

Macy has published articles in TEACHING Exceptional Children, Topics in Early Childhood Special Education, Journal of Early Intensive Behavior Intervention, Early Child Development and Care, Young Exceptional Children and the Journal of Early Intervention. She has received grants for both research and personnel preparation, and a fellowship at the National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research. Her awards for research on assessment include one from the American Education Research Association.

Macy earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Washington and both her master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Oregon.

Seven New Faculty Members Join Lyscoming

Lyscoming welcomed seven new faculty members for the start of the 2011 fall semester.

Igor Bascandzic is visiting assistant professor of psychology. He earned a bachelor's

Igor Bascandzic

in psychology from Sts. Kiril and Metodij University in Macedonia, a master's from Harvard University and recently finished an Ed.D. from the Harvard Graduate School of Education with a specialization in human development. While at Harvard, he was a teaching fellow in the departments of psychology and research interests are in children's learning and perception.

Marlene Canley

Marlene Canley is a special part-time instructor of education. She will be supervising elementary and special education student teachers. She comes to Lyscoming from the Williamsport Area School District, where she was a longtime learning support teacher. She has degrees in health and physical education and special education from Lock Haven and Mansfield universities.

Michael Darrough

Michael Darrough is a visiting assistant professor of art. He earned a bachelor's of fine arts in photography from Arizona State University, and has recently completed a master's of fine arts in photography from the University of Memphis, where he was also a photography instructor. He has widely exhibited his artwork in galleries and universities across the country.

Eugene Donati

Eugene Donati is an assistant professor of corporate communication. Before coming to Lyscoming, he taught at the City University of New York. Prior to entering into college teaching, he had an extensive career in public relations, most recently as a vice president at MasterCard Worldwide. He earned a bachelor's degree in international relations from the University of Pittsburgh, and holds master's degrees from both the University of Toronto and American University in Washington, D.C.

Tina Norton is an assistant professor of psychology. She earned a Ph.D. from Kent State University in social and health psychology and also has a bachelor's and master's degree from Edinboro University of Pennsylvania.

Tina Norton

Previously, she was a post-doctoral researcher at the Fox Chase Cancer Center in Philadelphia, and she has also taught at Clarkson University. Her research interests are smoking behavior and caffeine consumption among college students.

Michael Smith is an assistant professor of mathematical science. He joins the faculty after a teaching stint at Hollins University in Virginia. After completing a bachelor's degree in mathematics at Connecticut College, he earned a Ph.D. in mathematics at the University of Virginia, specializing in algebra. His main research interest is in mathematics college pedagogy. While at Virginia, he received two different teaching awards.

Michael Smith

Dongjiao Zhao is an assistant professor of biology. He earned a master's in genetics and a Ph.D. in developmental anatomy, both from Purdue University, as well as a bachelor's of medicine from China Medical University. Prior to joining the

Dongjiao Zhao

Lyscoming faculty, he taught at Purdue and Ivy Tech College in Indiana. His research focuses on the endocannabinoid system.

ORDER YOUR COPY TODAY!

To order a copy of "Lyscoming College 1812-2012: On the Frontiers of American Education," written by Dr. John F. Piper Jr., please call the Streeter Campus Store at 570-321-4049.

SEE RELATED STORY ON PAGE 8

Ask THE PROFESSOR

A five-minute interview with a Lyscoming faculty member

Now in your 43rd year, you are the most tenured faculty member at the College. What's the secret to your longevity?

I love what I do. I believe in the importance of the study of history. It's the most useful way for a people to understand the world in which they live, how they view themselves and how they view different people. Although most people don't talk or speak in historical terms, their attitudes and values are very much shaped by history. And if we understand history, we will understand people much better. Moreover, I believe I am the luckiest person on the faculty, because I get to teach the best subjects at Lyscoming College, which are modern European history and the American Civil War. The fact that all the professors here are equally passionate about their subjects makes this a wonderful environment.

What's been the biggest change you've seen at Lyscoming?

Lyscoming has grown in so many ways, this is difficult to answer. But from the perspective of someone who is a professor here, I would have to say it's been the growth and development of the faculty. There were some wonderful professors when I started here. I was very privileged to have worked with two mentors in Loring Priest and Robert Ewing, who were senior members of the faculty. They were wonderful mentors to me personally and they were very important to the history of the College because they came here right after World War II. They, along with several other faculty members, helped to make the College a four-year institution. Since they left, the faculty has continued to grow. There has been an enormous increase in their professional development. And this came from within the faculty ranks. We saw where higher education was going,

Dr. Robert Larson
Professor of History

have come from and to see the process of growth and development. As a historian, I like to see what I do as part of a continuum.

In June 2012, you plan to lead an alumni tour of Europe to recognize the 68th anniversary of D-Day. Describe some of the highlights.

We will be on Omaha Beach at 6:30 in the morning of June 6, which was the exact time the first Americans landed there. We've checked the tides, so we are going to be very close to the same tide levels. To be there at that time is a very emotional experience. And then we'll visit the cemetery there. We'll also visit Winston Churchill's war rooms and the Imperial War Museum in London, which is one of the finest military museums anywhere. These are just a few of the many exciting things we'll see and experience.

what we needed to do, and what kind of expectations we should have. The expectation for faculty development is much greater now than it was when I first came here. That is essential for the health of the College, essential for the education of our students and essential for our own intellectual growth.

What does it mean to you to have the opportunity to help the College celebrate its bicentennial?

I am co-teaching a first-year seminar on the history of the College. It has been quite fascinating to see how Lyscoming has evolved in the last 200 years. Lyscoming was not founded in 1812, a very different educational institution was founded in 1812. And that is true for colleges all around the United States. Those institutions have themselves grown and developed, just as Lyscoming has. I find it interesting to see that evolution and see how our history parallels the history of many other institutions of higher learning. It is exciting to be here during this special year. It gives us a chance to look back and see where we

About Larson

Dr. Robert Larson is a professor of history and has been teaching at Lyscoming since 1969. He has served as chair of the department for many years and since 1972, has served as coordinator of the International Studies Program. His areas of expertise are European history from the Renaissance to the present and military history during the 19th and 20th centuries. Since 1987, he has traveled extensively throughout England and Germany to conduct his research. His current research focuses on the Wars of German Unification in the 19th century. Larson earned a B.A. from The Citadel and an M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Virginia.

What better way to introduce soon-to-be Lycoming College graduates to the realities of life after college than to have them job-shadow with alumni in one of the world's greatest metropolises. Four hand-picked members of the Class of 2012, Chris Bernstorf, Chris DiYenno, Lacey Gustafson and Marcy McLaughlin, did just that in New York City on Friday, Oct. 28.

At 7:02 a.m., they eagerly departed campus on the three-and-a-half hour trip in a rental van stocked with blueberry and pumpkin muffins and a 50-count box of Munchkins from Dunkin' Donuts. After walking around Times Square and grabbing a quick lunch, the classmates disbanded and spent the rest of the afternoon shadowing a graduate who works in their field of interest. They then spent valuable time networking with roughly 20 Big Apple alumni at a two-hour 'meet and greet' reception. On Saturday at 1:25 a.m., still full from an incredible feast consumed at Carmine's family-style Italian restaurant, they arrived back on campus, wiser from the experience and grateful for the opportunity.

Accompanying the foursome were Amy Dowling '04, director of alumni relations, and Glenn Smith '07, major gift officer, co-coordinators of the excursion. Due to the overwhelming success of the NYC initiatives, planning is under way to hold a job shadow experience in Philadelphia on Friday, March 2.

◀ Class of 2012 members, from left, Lacey Gustafson, Marcy McLaughlin, Chris Bernstorf and Chris DiYenno visited Times Square prior to their alumni mentoring sessions.

'Meet and greet' alumni reception

"It is clearly evident that building connections with people is just as essential as the education Lycoming College provides."

Chris Bernstorf '12 and Gretchen Hanse '03

Chris Bernstorf '12
Major: English
Mentor: Gretchen Hanse '03
Employer: Christie's
Position: Associate specialist

"From seeing Times Square for the first time to leading through 100-year-old books, my job shadow at Christie's was truly incredible. I learned a tremendous amount about the city, the auction house business, rare and antique books, and more. I was inches from original Picassos and Dalis and learned about everything from setting auction estimates and appraisals to caring for manuscripts and understanding the internal workings of an auction. My time with our alumni helped give me a better perspective on my current plans after college, helped me realize the steps I will need to take to achieve my goals, and gave me the hope that, through hard work, dedication and the willingness to take chances, I too can have the dream job I've always wanted, and also still be a really cool, well-rounded person. And we had some pretty amazing food along the way!"

Kristina (Cortes) Allen '06 and Chris DiYenno '12

Chris DiYenno '12
Major: Business administration
Mentor: Kristina (Cortes) Allen '06
Employer: DeWitt Stern Group
Position: Assistant account executive

"Talking with Kristina really showed me that being passionate about your job and enjoying the company of the people you work with are way more valuable than making money at a monotonous job. When I started college, I did not realize the full value of building connections with current and former students. Now, in the first semester of my senior year, it is clearly evident that building connections with people is just as essential as the education Lycoming College provides. For a small school in central Pennsylvania, Lycoming has a large group of graduates throughout the country. During the reception that evening, I met with another alumnus who worked in my field of interest and he gave me his contact information. What a great example of how strong a tool networking can be. It is really inspiring to see Lycoming graduates achieving success in their field, but also that they are so willing to help out current students find jobs after graduation."

Marcy McLaughlin '12 and Ashley Concini '06

Marcy McLaughlin '12
Major: Business administration
Mentor: Ashley Concini '06
Employer: Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer LLP
Position: Human resources/legal recruiting assistant

"The day I spent in New York City job shadowing with Ashley is one that I will not soon forget. Being at the internationally-renowned law firm of Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer LLP was an exceptional opportunity that not many schools offer their students. After graduation, I plan to attend law school, and Ashley gave me insight on how to interview for summer associate positions and how to make myself stand out to employers. I truly appreciate Ashley taking the time to show me what her job entails and introducing me to the world of international law. My experience was invaluable and I believe it will help me as I enter the legal profession. During the evening meet and greet, it was great to see the wide range of careers that former Lycoming students have gone on to and also to chat about our memories of Lycoming."

On the Frontiers of American Education

A Conversation with Dr. John F. Piper Jr.

By Jerry Rashid

There's not a person on earth who knows more about Lycoming College than Dr. John F. Piper Jr. For the last few years, from his small, windowless, book-filled office on the lower level of the Academic Center, he has meticulously researched the College's 200-year existence. He's discovered the good, the bad and the whimsical. And, in recognition of Lycoming's ongoing bicentennial celebration, he's put it all into his latest book, "Lycoming College 1812-2012: On the Frontiers of American Education."

Piper's thirst for knowledge about the College grew more and more as his tenure on campus evolved. His more than 40-year association was initiated in 1969, when he became a professor of history. He later chaired the department on several occasions from 1974-92 and served as dean of the College from 1992 until his retirement in 2007. Since then, in his role as College historian, he's rifled through old student newspapers, alumni magazines, board minutes and countless other documents, in print and on the web, in an effort to discover all that is Lycoming College.

Lycoming Magazine recently caught up with the storyteller-extraordinaire to learn more about his laudable efforts with the book that will forever capture the first 200 years of the College.

What was your biggest challenge while researching the College's 200-year history?

The historian asks the question, "How did we get the way we are?" The biggest general challenge in writing a history of Lycoming College was to find the answer (s) to that question. Charles S. Williams wrote a "History of Lycoming College and its Precursor Institutions" in 1959. He chose to answer the question in terms of the leaders of the College, particularly its presidents. While they were very important to the College's history, my research indicates that they had substantial help from the trustees/directors, the faculty and the students. The participation of the members of all these groups in seeking to work out the mission of the College led me to a more complex answer to the basic question.

Lycoming has descended from three other institutions, one of which had two names. The Williamsport Academy began in 1812, the inspiration of eight men who sought a state charter for it and became its first trustees. A group of Methodists, led by the Rev. Benjamin Crever, bought the Academy from the Town Council in 1848 and named it Dickinson Seminary. The trustees, who became the directors in 1860, renamed it Williamsport Dickinson Seminary, although most people continued to call it Dickinson Seminary. The Seminary added a Junior College in 1929. The president and board of directors moved their school to four-year status in 1947 and chose the name Lycoming.

The sources for these specific institutions presented different challenges. The problem I faced with the Academy was that very few records have survived from the early half of the 19th century. There are few official documents, very few letters and no diaries, and no consistent run of local newspapers. I discovered some new information in the archival collections of the Pennsylvania

State Archives in Harrisburg and in the Lycoming County Historical Society Archives, but there remain substantial gaps in the story. The challenge for the other three institutions was just the opposite of the one for the Academy: there are many sources for each of them, requiring extensive study and interpretation.

What's the most interesting fact you discovered?

I prefer to respond about the most interesting things that I discovered, and they are not facts the way people think of facts, such as dates or dollar amounts or enrollments. First, the school would not have survived without the support of interested individuals, none of whom were faculty or presidents; they were the people who stepped forward to get a charter, and to fund the schools through the years, and who sent their children to it and encouraged others to send their children. Some were directors or trustees, but many had no official relationship with the school except through a financial contribution. They include a member of the Rich family who bought a $500 bond in the early 1850s, and board member Miriam Wendle, who left a small Williamsport company, Lubrikup, to the College in the 1960s.

Another important group was the students. My first outline for the book projected 12 chapters and did not contain a separate one on students. The final book has 21 chapters, with two devoted to students, and several others in which they play a large role. My decision to include them in a substantial way led to a much longer book, and I believe a much more compelling and accurate story.

How valuable was the College Archives in your research?

I arrived at Lycoming in 1969. A few years later, the History Department created a course called Historical Methods. I believed that the history of the College was a potential source for the required research papers and went in search of the archives. They amounted to a dusty collection of materials, unorganized and very difficult to use. In spite of that, some students used them and were able to tell parts of the story of the school. Things changed in the 1980s as the library began to gather the archival material. I attribute the great leap forward to Janet Hurlbert [director of library services], who developed a proposal for an archives policy in the mid-1990s, which the board of trustees adopted. The library subsequently hired Julia Dougherty, the former director of circulation, to be the archives technician. The archives were absolutely essential to the preparation of the history. I do not think I could have written it, documenting the sources, before 2000.

Has there been a common thread associated with Lycoming's longevity?

There have been at least three common threads that have contributed to its longevity. They are, first, the consistent mission of the school to provide the best liberal (as in liberal arts and sciences) education possible to the students, given the financial conditions at any given time. Beginning in 1848 and through at least 1968, this mission had a very explicit Christian orientation. All the presidents from 1848 to 1968 were Methodist clergymen. The College continues to be related to the United Methodist Church and accredited by the University Senate of the United Methodist Church, but the religious orientation has become somewhat less strident in the last four decades. The second thread has been the generations of volunteers who have given their time, talents and money to the school. The most important among this group has been, as I suggested earlier, the directors/trustees. The third common thread has been the commitment of the faculty. Those who arrived as teachers, from Academy days until the 1920s, rarely stayed long, but they sustained a liberal arts curriculum. Beginning in the 1920s, President John Long gathered a core faculty who remained longer and sustained a more consistent curriculum. The liberal arts and sciences curriculum in use today dates from the early 1960s and was modified and strengthened in the 1990s.

What do you hope readers will take away from your new book?

As I describe in the book, Lycoming College has been on four of the significant frontiers of American education, and beginning with the new Carnegie Classification of Colleges in 2000, has moved to a fifth one. These different experiences do not make the College unique, but they do give it a distinction and a very rich history. My hope is that the College community will find the story exciting and share it more widely. I have two other audiences in mind. The history of the College is also the history of one important aspect of private education in Williamsport and the surrounding region, and I hope the citizens of the area learn its story. My final goal was to write a history that would add Lycoming's story to those of other educational institutions in the nation.

Editor's Note: Dr. John F. Piper Jr. received Lycoming's Dale V. Bower Service Award in 2009. His educational background includes earning a bachelor's degree in history from Lafayette College, a bachelor of divinity degree from Yale University and a Ph.D. from Duke University. He and his wife, Margaret, reside in Loyalsock Township just outside of Williamsport, Pa.

► During World War II, President John Long and the College played a significant role in training military pilots as part of its War Training Service. Pictured are some of these cadets with President Long in 1944. More than 300 people at the College participated in this program during the war.

Dr. John F. Piper Jr.

Did You Know?

There is little doubt that Lycoming's 200-year history is full of interesting facts, both known and little-known. Here are a few such truths, including some that offer a "then and now" glimpse of the College. Enjoy learning more about one of America's 50 oldest institutions of higher learning.

President Long

Dr. John W. Long served the College for 34 years (1921-55) as president and was instrumental in transitioning the institution from Williamsport Dickinson Seminary to Williamsport Dickinson Junior College to Lycoming College. Toward the end of his legacy, Long made two of the most lasting contributions to the athletics program, overseeing its admission to the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Middle Atlantic Conference in 1951.

The Robert F. Rich family 1923

played a pivotal role in the Seminary's quest to achieve junior college status. In 1929, the Seminary became the first fully accredited junior college in Pennsylvania.

In 1948, a new residence hall for women was erected and the Rich family's support was officially recognized when the board named the building Rich Hall.

The Rich Family

The Rich family, which started the Woolrich outdoor clothing company in 1830 in nearby Woolrich, Pa., was at the forefront of the development of the College through their dedication and financial commitment. Through the years, 29 family members attended the College. Congressman Robert F. Rich succeeded his father, M.B. Rich, as president of the board of directors. Congressman Rich arrive on campus from around the United States and the world. This fall, Lycoming enrolled 460 new students with 20 percent coming from Lycoming County, 40 percent from out-of-state and from 10 other countries. Nearly 90 percent of Lycoming's 1,400 students reside on campus.

Ly Le '13 and Chandra Besong '12

Financial Aid

Language from the original charter said the institution would offer financial assistance to students who could not afford to attend. That initiative is still strongly practiced today as the College provides more than $22 million in financial aid and scholarship support to its students.

Physical Plant

The College moved to its current location "on the hill" after one and three-quarter acres of land just north of the city limits were purchased in 1839. Today, Lycoming manages 30 buildings for 37 years. He posted more than 300 career wins and the annual Budd Whitehill National Duals, a 20-team event hosted on campus featuring the some of the country's best wrestlers, are named in his memory.

Coach Frank Girardi celebrates his 35th victory.

The First Homecoming - 1923

Homecoming's history at the College traces back to 1923, when the football team hosted Mansfield on Nov. 3, going on to win 13-7. Homecoming, in that origin, was held as part of the same celebration as the laying of the gymnasium cornerstone. A year later, the team's Homecoming game against Wyoming Seminary coincided with the dedication of the gym and with that, the tradition was born.

Class of 1871

Academics

According to its charter, the Academy was established "for the education of youth in the English and other languages, in the useful arts, science and literature."

The College operates similarly today and is recognized as a national liberal arts and sciences institution. There are 35 academic programs of study; the top five majors for the 2011 fall semester are business, psychology, biology, criminal justice and art. The education program also attracts a large number of students.

Athletics

Much like its academics counterpart, success in athletics has been a longstanding tradition at the College. Baseball was the first sport played at the Seminary in 1890. The first game proved a huge success as the Seminary won, 17-6, against Port's Business College. The first football game was played in 1895. The Seminary's first girls' sport—basketball—can be traced back to 1927. Lycoming now offers 17 NCAA Division III athletic programs.

Several programs have been led by legendary coaches who have brought national attention to the College. During his 36 years as head football coach, Frank Girardi became a giant in the small-college football ranks as he guided the Warriors to a career record of 257-97-5 (.723). His teams made 11 appearances in the NCAA Division III playoffs, including trips to the national title game in 1990 and 1997. Budd Whitehill retired in 1993 after serving as the head wrestling coach

LYCOMING COLLEGE: A TIMELINE

1811

Chartered on April 2, 1811, the Williamsport Academy - Lycoming's predecessor institution - is founded.

1839

The Academy moves to the "hill." For $2,392, 1 1/4 acres of land just north of borough limits are purchased. A plain, brick, three-story building that will become the west wing of Old Main is constructed.

1848

The Academy is purchased by the Methodist Church and opens on Sept. 14, as Williamsport Dickinson Seminary, a preparatory school for Dickinson College.

1855

Old Main is completed.

1869

Ownership of the Seminary is transferred to the Preachers' Aid Society.

1885

A reference library is started, several scholarships are established, the athletic field is leveled and a grandstand with seating for 1,000 is constructed on the Quad.

1890

Electricity is introduced to Old Main.

1895

Bradley Hall, a conservatory of art and music, is built.

1912-55

A gymnasium, Clarke Chapel, Memorial Hall, Rich Hall, the John W. Long Library, 1929

Fine Arts Building and a President's residence are added.

1931

The first junior college courses are offered, and the school is renamed to Williamsport Dickinson Junior College.

1935

The school becomes the first fully-accredited private junior college in Pennsylvania.

1947

The institution becomes a four-year, degree-granting college of liberal arts, and the name Lycoming College is officially chosen.

1949

The first baccalaureate degrees are conferred.

1957

The Flock Brewery bottling building is converted into a science hall. The Tour Choir embarks on its first overseas tour to England and Scotland.

1962

Enrollment increases to 1,200.

1963

A new football stadium is completed.

1968

The Academic Center opens.

1975

The first Christmas Candlelight Service is held.

1979

Lamade Gym opens.

1989

Dr. James E. Douthett becomes the 14th president of the College.

1990

The Heim Building opens and the Institute for Management Studies is established.

1996-98

A new campus entrance and intramural fields are added on Market Street. The Shangraw Athletic Complex opens.

1997

The Class of 2001 is the first to enter campus through the David B. Sykes Gate during New Student Convocation. The Carnegie Foundation classifies Lycoming as a national liberal arts college.

2004-07

The Recreation Center, Honors Hall and The Commons open.

2010

Lycoming is recognized as a Tier 1 institution by U.S. News and World Report.

2011

Lycoming hold its Bicentennial Charter Day celebration April 2.

There's No Place Like Home

Old Main

By Casey Spencer '05

In 1812, on a four-plot section of land called Academy Square at the corner of West Third and West streets in what is now downtown Williamsport, stood the Williamsport Academy – the proud beginnings of Lycoming College.

In the nearly 200 years since, a lot has happened to the place that generations of students have, for at least a short time, called home. If you were to click your heels together three times and wish, where would your ruby slippers – or favorite pair of chucks – take you? Clarke Chapel? The Quad? Perhaps somewhere more obscure, like a favorite corner of the library? It may even be that the spot you associate most with Lycoming now exists only as a fond memory.

Williamsport Academy

Chartered on April 2, 1811, the Williamsport Academy, described as a plain but substantial brick structure with two stories and four good-sized rooms, was the first home of what would become Lycoming College.

Old Main

The College moved to its current setting in 1839. Near the city's center, on a slight eminence, the west wing of Old Main was built and the institution was affectionately referred to as "The School Upon the Hilltop."

In its 130-year span that lasted until 1968, Old Main contained student rooms, administrative and faculty offices, a chapel, classrooms, the library and the residence of the president. Today, its location is commemorated by a marker between the Fine Arts Building and Lamade Gymnasium.

The Williamsport Academy

Bradley Hall

The May 1895 issue of the Dickinson Liberal student newspaper read, "It is with pleasure we note for the benefit of our readers that Bradley Hall cornerstone was laid on Tuesday, April 23... The building when finished will be among the finest in the city and a monument of a long cherished hope and indefatigable effort."

And fine it was. The only building of its kind in northern Pennsylvania at the time, the three-story brick structure with Italian-style architecture served as an art and music conservatory, and later housed the library, faculty offices and classrooms. Bradley stood for 85 years, until it was razed in 1980.

Eveland Hall

"Egypt has its Pyramids of Kufu, China has its Wall, Babylon had its Hanging Gardens, Greece had its Jupiter Olympus, its Tomb of Mausolus, its Temple of Diana, Rhodes had its Brass Colossus, and the Pharaohs had their Lighthouse, and in this present day and age Dickinson Seminary has its Angel Factory."

If this quote from "The Dart" yearbook of Dickinson Seminary in 1925 is any indication, students loved their Eveland Hall. Built in 1912 and originally called the Service Building, Eveland was renamed in honor of Dr. William Perry Eveland, one of the Seminary's presidents.

Eveland Hall

Eveland Hall was bestowed the nickname "Angel Factory" because it housed the ministerial students, who by many accounts were less than angelic in their day. It also served as a Civil War museum from 1958-68. The building stood until 1979, when it was removed to make room for Lamade Gymnasium.

Memorial Hall

Dedicated in 1947, 100 years after the founding of Williamsport Dickinson Seminary, Memorial Hall's short-lived span on campus lasted until 1968.

Quad 1939

◀ Bradley Hall
▶ Memorial Hall

The hall was originally a war surplus building and later used by the government as office space. The College acquired the frame building and moved it from White Deer.

Found adjacent to the Chapel, Memorial doubled the classroom space at the growing institution. It was dedicated to 25 war dead and more than 400 World War II service men and women.

The "Old" Science Building

Once the bottling facility for Flock's Brewing Company, this building was converted into a science center in 1956-57. It was used until 1988 and housed biology and chemistry laboratories, classrooms, a lecture hall and a greenhouse.

Flock's brewery moved in as the Seminary's neighbor in 1854. For many years, numerous jokes had been recited concerning Seminary students operating a pipe line from the vats to Bradley Hall, a few feet away.

Science Center (Flock's Brewery)

Accepted and Cheerful

by Jerry
Rashid

Wesley Dodge '37 recalls his days at Williamsport Dickinson Junior College

Wesley Dodge '37

Wesley Dodge '37 says he chose Williamsport Dickinson Junior College because "the price was right." He's referring to the $100 per semester he paid to attend the College as a commuter student. Despite the right price, Dodge still had to borrow the money because his father could not afford to pay for his education.

During his two years on campus, Dodge says he would attend classes and then return home, unless he had football practice. He played right tackle for coach Earl S. McKay. He also helped out behind-the-scenes on the props during school plays and worked at the College on Saturdays, cleaning up the campus grounds to help pay off his student loan.

"I had a great time at Dickinson," said the 95-year-old Dodge. "When I was there, we had the gym, library, Angel Factory [Eveland Hall] and Bradley Hall. Everybody was accepted and cheerful. President [John] Long was a good administrator."

For Dodge, the subject of choice was mathematics, which was taught by his favorite professor, Milton Skeath. "I was the number one student in the class," exclaimed Dodge. "Why I didn't study that the rest of the time, I don't know."

Another one of Dodge's admired professors was Lula Richardson, who taught French. Dodge distinctly remembers that during his second year in the class, he and his classmates were only allowed to speak French. "And I haven't used it since then!" Dodge said with a hearty chuckle.

"I also had to take religion; I didn't want to but I had to," said Dodge. "The teacher was Burrill Harrington; we called him 'Spook' Harrington. Our class was on the third floor of Bradley Hall. When the wind would blow, the door would rattle. He would say, 'Excuse me; there is someone at the door.' He would go to the door and there was never anyone there. He did that all the time. That's how he got the name 'Spook.'"

When Dodge was wrapping up his two-year stint at Dickinson and contemplating where to continue his education, he consulted with John Cornwell Jr., dean of the College at the time. Dodge told him that he preferred Colgate, because that is where his brother attended. Unfortunately, Colgate did not accept him.

"Dean Cornwell told me I could attend either Susquehanna or American University," said Dodge. "I chose American University, because it was further away. And that is where I met my wife."

Dodge left American after his junior year and returned to Williamsport, where he found employment in the advertising department at the Grit Publishing Company. He credits having good mentors for his success and longevity at the company; he worked his way up to advertising manager and retired in 1981 following 43 years of service.

On Aug. 3, Dodge and his wife, Mary, celebrated their 69th wedding anniversary. They have four children, eight grandchildren, 10 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild. He remains active as a volunteer in the community and plays golf once-a-week at the Liberty Valley Country Club in Danville. On July 29, he showed his unwavering commitment to the College's football program by playing in a foursome during the Warriors' annual golf outing.

By Any Other Name

"College Renamed," headlined the first issue of the Lycoming Courier, published in November 1947. The institution that, for the last century, had been known as Williamsport Dickinson, first as a seminary and then as a junior college, had a new name to reflect its new status as a four-year college of the liberal arts and sciences.

But, Lycoming wasn't the only name under consideration for the changing school. The earliest discussions of a four-year college had included the need for a new name without "Dickinson" in it. Shortly after the board of trustees made its final decision for a senior college, the school announced the leading candidates for a new name: Northern Methodist College, Pennsylvania Wesleyan College, Lycoming College, Crever College and Rich College.

Congressman Robert F. Rich conveyed that, although his father and many in his family had been and were supporters of the institution, he personally would not agree to have the family name on the new college. Not without a sense of humor, he added that he did not think "Rich College" was a good idea for it would give people the impression that it already had all the money it needed. Why not, he suggested, "Williamsport College?" College President John Long spread the word about Rich's preferences. He also let others know that his personal choice was Crever College. Loyalsock College and Muncy College were among other names that surfaced.

The board finally decided, a week before Homecoming, to name the school Lycoming. Both Lycoming Wesleyan and Lycoming Junior College had been considered as possible names during the junior college years, but the reason given for the choice college had a name. Suggestions included Indians, Chiefs, Warriors, Redskins, Susquehannocks and Braves. No record has survived of who made the final choice, but the athletic teams became and have remained the Warriors.

The term was first used to describe the football team during its Homecoming game with the Western Maryland J.V.s. The team won the game 31-0, in what became an undefeated season. After the season was over, football letterwinners were the first to receive gold "L"s recognizing their success on the field. The new uniforms for the band had Indian-head insignias on the sleeves.

The editor of the Williamsport Sun celebrated the decision to adopt "Lycoming." He recommended that Lycoming should now turn its attention to helping people pronounce its name correctly, and offered a rhyme to match preferred local usage: "Keep things humming at Lycoming."

Editor's note: This article was crafted using material from "Lycoming College 1812-2012: On the Frontiers of American Education," written by Dr. John F. Piper Jr., dean and professor of history emeritus.

COLLEGE RENAMED Lycoming Courier

Williamport-Dickinson Now Lycoming College

As a result of a vote taken by the Board of Trustees of the Williamport-Dickinson Junior College, the name of the institution has been changed to Lycoming College. The change was made effective at the beginning of the new school year. The new name was chosen because it is more descriptive of the institution's present status as a four-year college of the liberal arts and sciences.

PLATTER CHATTER

Lycoming College has a new name. The name is Lycoming College. The name was chosen because it is more descriptive of the institution's present status as a four-year college of the liberal arts and sciences.

BIG DEALS

Lycoming College has a new name. The name is Lycoming College. The name was chosen because it is more descriptive of the institution's present status as a four-year college of the liberal arts and sciences.

SCENE AND HEARD

Lycoming College has a new name. The name is Lycoming College. The name was chosen because it is more descriptive of the institution's present status as a four-year college of the liberal arts and sciences.

Serving a Greater Purpose

Rev. R. Bruce Smay '49

One of the first graduates of Lycoming College

BY JERRY RASHD

As a youngster growing up on a farm in Clearfield County, Pa., R. Bruce Smay '49 had inklings that he was being called to serve a greater purpose. But he wasn't sure if they were just random childhood thoughts or if they were truly God's plans for him. With the help of Lycoming College, he found his answer.

"To me, I still owe Lycoming something because it got me started in the ministry," said Smay. "The College helped me to see what I wanted to do and the professors assured me that was the path I should take."

After graduating as a member of the first class of the newly-named Lycoming College in 1949, Smay furthered his education at Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary in Illinois. He then returned to Pennsylvania and served for nearly 40 years as a United Methodist minister, leading congregations in Avis, Riverside, Muncy, Hollidaysburg and Harrisburg, before retiring in 1981. While serving in Riverside and Muncy, Smay led efforts to build new church buildings.

His sermons usually focused on the events of the day, but he would always try to accentuate John 3:16. "God so loved the world that he gave his only beloved Son so that we might have life eternal in Jesus Christ," said Smay, who continues to serve the church as a mentor and new pastors. "God loves each one of us and sent Jesus Christ to be our Savior and give us eternal life and hope and peace for living in this life. God's love is for now as well as the future. God cares for each and every one of us. We should love one another as God loves us."

programs and new ideas," said Smay. "Everyone was excited because all of the sudden we were at a four-year college right in Williamsport."

Smay enjoyed his collegiate experience and liked most of his professors, including Helen Breese Weidman, who taught political science and history. "Everyone was afraid of her," said Smay. "I thought her class was rather easy. If you paid good attention, you knew what she was going to ask on a test."

On campus, Smay was active in intramural sports and the John Wesley Club, designed for students interested in the ministry. He also worked for two years as a waiter in the dining hall, previously located in the lower level of Clarke Chapel, where he had the honor of serving President Long and his family, who joined the students during their daily family-style meals.

"The president's table was the easiest one in the place," recalls Smay. "Everyone was afraid to serve the president but me. They were the easiest people to get along with. They weren't demanding or anything."

A room on the third floor of Old Main served as Smay's home-away-from-home for three years. During his senior year, he lived off campus after marrying his late wife, Winifred (Taber) Smay '49, whom he met at the College. They had two children, Katherine and John '79, who is a lawyer in Williamsport. Smay and his wife, Jeanne, now live in Lewisburg in a retirement community affiliated with the United Methodist Church.

Excerpts from the President's Message, The Arrow yearbook, 1949

To the Members of the Class of 1949, Lycoming College:

History as a subject for study seems to some people uninteresting, but history in the making is seldom dull. I need not remind you that you, as the first class to graduate and receive degrees from Lycoming College, are making history.

Since you are the first group who has done all your undergraduate work at Lycoming College, we hope you will take the lead in developing and organizing an ever increasing body of alumni with a deep interest in and an abiding loyalty in your college.

Your alma mater, as a fond parent, is interested in you not only while here but will follow you with fondest hopes and eager expectation as you go out to meet whatever life holds for you.

Sincerely,

John W. Long

President

Paradise Found

A firsthand look inside the College Archives

By Cristina Sorrells '12

Lycoming College has many students and graduates who are interested in archaeology. Known colloquially as "diggers" by teachers and non-archaeology students, we were taught to survey, lay gridlines and look for the aforementioned buried historical treasures. One of Lycoming's greatest finds is right below the feet of its students, and has remained, for many, largely undiscovered—the College Archives.

When I came for my tour I saw the whole campus, except the archives. When I came back for my orientation, I was taken to the third floor of the Academic Center, where I was to spend a large portion of my college career as an archaeology student. I never saw or heard of the archives. A year later, when I applied for a student librarian position, I was offered one in the archives. I was excited by the prospect and curious about what I would find there. When I walked in the first time, I knew I had found paradise.

The rooms currently housing the archives used to be a lab for Lycoming's former nursing program. Five rooms hold a myriad of pieces of the school's history, including a scrapbook from a student, Emory Mack "Peet" Bell, who attended in 1918, with newspaper clippings of World War I patriotic songs, anti-Kaiser rhymes and poems, and even her ration book. She also donated $1.00 to the American Red Cross, "Doing my bit."

Last semester, I undertook the interesting challenge of identifying and possibly dating a photo of a group of girls dressed in mock Civil War uniforms and carrying wooden guns. After weeks of scouring photos with a magnifying glass to search for one outstanding feature on one person in the group of 19 that could provide a clue to their identity or date, I found two girls that looked somewhat similar, and focused on them. I finally found their graduation portraits. The girls were sisters attending Williamsport Dickinson Seminary from 1882-85. With the mystery solved, I felt a great sense of accomplishment.

The photos are my personal favorite, since they provide a permanent record of the clothes we now only notice in passing at museums, being worn and lived in by real people. The shape and make-up of the school has changed often during the last 200 years—from a primary school to a four-year college. Buildings have come and gone, as the campus grew from one building to 16. The Quad has been transformed from a muddy field to a tennis court, from a football field to a place to relax in the sun and hold commencement.

While it is true that the bulk of the work done in the archives is historic, not archaeological, I have never been one of those people who could separate the two in my mind. With-out history (the events), no one would be interested in archaeology; without archaeology (the stuff), it's harder to prove history. Yin and Yang—they flow together.

The archives is a place of renewal, preservation and discovery. The Ancient Egyptians believed that as long as someone remembered your name, or at least said it out loud, then you were alive in the afterlife. I feel as if working in the archives allows me to do that in a small way. Some of the people we are concerned with have indeed passed away, but we have their faces and names in yearbooks, letters and photos.

Attaching an identity to a previously unknown face gives them new life, as a person whose traditions I'm helping to maintain. They paved the way for my coming to Lycoming College by helping Williamsport Dickinson Seminary and Williamsport Dickinson Seminary and Junior College to be successful schools. I hope that in 100 years, some other student helper working in the archives sees the pictures of me or some of my friends, and say: "It looks like they had a lot of fun in those days," wondering with a smile what we were like, what classes we took, and what were our hopes for the future.

Cristina Sorrells

Inquiring Mind

First Chieftain Award recipient credits Lycoming with gift of a lifetime

By Nancy J. McClam

Nancy (Hall) Brunner '52

her education, earning a master's degree in behavior and communication at New York University. She held professional and managerial roles in various fields, including sales, public relations, organization development and writing, and has worked as an educator and consultant. And, Brunner raised a family that now includes grandchildren. As for retirement, that's not in the game plan quite yet as she is still active in several endeavors, including teaching as an adjunct professor.

In a recent interview, Brunner reflected upon her years at Lycoming and receiving the inaugural Chieftain Award—the highest honor given to a graduating senior in recognition of the student who has shown the utmost dedication and leadership qualities while at Lycoming.

Earning her undergraduate degree with approximately 100 other students in the Class of 1952, Brunner described her four years at Lycoming as a “broadening experience.”

“Surprisingly, many students came from far beyond our local area: New York, New Jersey and southern states in the U.S., as well as foreign countries. One of my best friends was from Indonesia,” reminisced Brunner. “Our faculty came from diverse backgrounds and teaching approaches. I learned Spanish from a chic, sexy and cosmopolitan young woman reared in Europe. In contrast, I began a lifelong appreciation of literature from a dignified but feisty New Englander who steeped our small lit class in critical thinking during rigorous seminars in his snug home library, always accompanied by his wife's tea and goodies.”

“We students were introduced to conflicting perspectives from visitors to open lecture series,” continued Brunner. “It was enriching to see faculty members debate passionately with guest speakers who held dramatically different views. We were allowed to make political demonstrations and, upon occasion, march through town. And of course, some of us raised Cain from time to time.”

Brunner acknowledged she was very surprised to receive the Chieftain Award as she and her classmates were busy with thoughts of graduation and going out “into the real world.” In hindsight, she believes she was chosen because she was so involved in school activities and what Lycoming had to offer. Brunner sang and toured with the cappella choir for the four years she attended the College. She was involved in putting together the class yearbook, served as senior class secretary, wrote and produced a musical show titled “Let's Go Back,” which raised money for the senior class, and participated in various other student activities.

“Looking back, perhaps the source of the recognition was to symbolize a realized opportunity to capture what Lycoming offered—a great place to grow and establish life-affecting memories,” said Brunner. “I'm fully aware that the foundation provided there as an undergraduate has helped shape my life...Lycoming planted seeds that grew into a lifelong pursuit to understand people and events. I believe that Lycoming provided support for an inquiring mind. That was the school's gift to me.”

For our years, 30 countries and many triathlons since becoming the 56th winner of Lycoming College's prestigious Chieftain Award, Jessica Gough '07 is still impressing people.

Gough graduated with a bachelor's degree in actuarial mathematics, mathematics and economics. She is now a senior actuarial associate for Prudential Financial, analyzing the financial impact of risk. In 2010, Gough applied for a job in one of Prudential's international offices. She was accepted into the program and subsequently spent 13 months living and working in Milan, Italy. “While in Italy, I learned to embrace their culture and studied their language,” she said.

Gough also took full advantage of her weekends and allotted vacation days to expand her knowledge of the world around her—traveling to 29 different countries.

“I rode camels around the pyramids in Egypt,” said Gough, who enjoys staying active through swimming, intramural sports and participating in triathlons. “I visited Hungary, where my grandparents were born. I went skiing in the Swiss Alps and went paragliding in Turkey. I could only have dreamed that I would be able to do and see so much.”

Gough, now back in the states living and working in New Jersey, enjoys the continued educational experiences and variety her position offers. As a member of Prudential's Actuarial Leadership Development Program, she has the opportunity to change jobs every year. “It allows me to gain experience with different financial products and the laws and regulations that pertain to them,” she said.

In addition to challenges of carrying a triple-major—a challenge to which she rose as evidence by her membership in the honor society of Phi Kappa Phi—Gough participated in several extra and co-curricular activities. She was a

Seizing the Opportunity

By Miles Biggs '12

Jess Gough '07 paragliding during a trip to Fethiye, Turkey, and inside the Colosseum in Rome, Italy

captain of the swim team, a founding sister of the Alpha Xi Delta sorority and president of her class.

According to Gough, all of these experiences taught her a great deal about professionalism, discipline and teamwork. She touts being selected as Chieftain as the highlight of her senior year and refers to it as “an honor and day that I will never forget.”

However, her biggest lesson did not come from one specific experience, club or award.

“The biggest lesson I learned at Lycoming was to seize opportunities,” said Gough. “I usually regret the opportunities that I allow to pass by, not the ones that I pursue. Lycoming gave me the confidence to apply for the job in Italy, even though I did not know anyone there and I did not speak the language.”

Gough is one of only 60 Chieftains in the history of the College. Each recipient of the award exemplifies the meaning of the Greek word placed on the College seal, aletheia, which means truth. Lycoming brings truth to learning by giving students opportunities for growth outside of the classroom, making its students far more prepared for life after graduation. The Chieftains are exceptional examples of that philosophy.

“I am proud to say that I attended Lycoming College, one of the 50th oldest colleges in the United States, especially as it celebrates 200 years,” said Gough. “This milestone serves as proof of Lycoming's dedication to its students and the alumni's appreciation of their valuable education.”

LYCOMING COLLEGE

1812

INTO OUR THIRD CENTURY HOMECOMING & REUNION WEEKEND

Alumni from around the country returned to Lycoming College to join students, faculty and staff for the bicentennial Homecoming and Reunion Weekend, Oct. 14-16, 2011.

Applly titled, "Into Our Third Century," the weekend featured many opportunities to reconnect and reminisce, including the (rain-soaked) Thomas B. Croyle '70 Memorial Golf Tournament, 50th Reunion Dinner, Athletics Hall of Fame Induction Dinner, Beer and Pretzel Tent, Choir Open Rehearsal, and the Alumni Brunch and Awards Presentation.

Following the Homecoming parade, countless Warrior faithful braved the cool and blustery conditions to cheer on the football team, which used an impressive ground game to come away with a 40-7 victory against Wilkes University.

At halftime, Laura Klym and Joe Andrie were crowned the Homecoming Queen and King.

To see more photos from Homecoming, visit www.lycoming.edu/alumni/homecoming or the College's Facebook page.

1. Go Warriors!
2. Homecoming King and Queen, Joe Andrie and Laura Klym
3. Class of 1961 50th Reunion Dinner, from left: Ed Slavsky, Rev. Bill Hartman, Bob Garrett, Roman Bastian, Lou Morelli, Sharon Pratt, Rosier, Don Whistler, Dr. Dennis Youshaw and Rev. Gary Adams
4. The Lycoming Choir performs during the Choir Open Rehearsal
5. President James and Emily Douthat enjoy the Homecoming parade
6. Members of the Class of 1966 gather for a group photo.

7. Rachel (Bowen) Miller '08, Shannon Town '07, Jamie (Rovee) Brown '08 and Graceanne McGinnis '08
8. The winning foursome at the annual golf outing included: Joyce Eyer '01, Tim Smith '99, Bill Kiser '98 and Jamie Spencer '01
9. Brianna Robertson '10, Amy Richards '10, Mitchell Leauge '10 and Kristina Kocion '10
10. Attendees at the Homecoming Club included: Bastian '61, Lou Morelli '61 and Dr. Dennis Youshaw '61
- back row from left: President James Douthat, Robert Shungrow '88, Dale Bower '59, Arthur Haberberger '59 and Mary (Hoffman) Bower '60

Forever Connected to Little League

In August 1947, Carm Grieco '57 was in a rather confusing spot.

At age 12, he was playing baseball with all his old friends on the Lock Haven Little League All-Star team. The only problem was, as he faced off against the Maynard Little League All-Stars in the finals of the first National Little League Tournament, he was facing all his new friends from Williamsport.

Grieco's father, a dentist, had moved the family to Williamsport that summer, and Grieco, who shined as a catcher during the Little League season, took the bus trip back and forth to Lock Haven for every game. When he played pickup games during the summer, though, he played with his new friends around Maynard Street.

Sixty-five years later, that first National Little League Tournament still carries a mystique all its own. This new idea, an all-star tournament of the best 10- to 12-year old baseball players in a town's league, drew 2,500 on-lookers to Fourth Street across from Bowman Field for the final game.

It was an idea that drew national attention and within a year, it started to grow into an event with teams representing six states. Today, of course, Little League runs a tournament for 11- and 12-year old boys that features more than 7,000 teams before the 16 best converge in Williamsport each summer for the Little League World Series.

Throughout the history of Little League, there has been a strong bond between the College and the youth baseball organization,

The 1947 Maynard Midgets, winners of the first-ever Little League World Series, featured four future Lycoming graduates: Walt Dunston '57, William Gallagher '57, Jimmy Sughrue '58 and Frank Wool '57.

from some of its most legendary players to prominent executives, the link is unmistakable.

In the shadows of Lycoming College

In the early years of Little League, Williamsport was at the heart of every decision. One of the first links between Lycoming and the organization came when Little League founder Carl E. Stotz asked John Lindemuth to manage a team. A 1927 graduate of Dickinson Seminary, Lindemuth was one of the school's best athletes in the late '20s, earning letters in football, track and field, and basketball, but ironically, not baseball. Still, Lindy, who grew up on Fourth Street in Newberry, was immediately a perfect fit within Little League, joining the board of directors and eventually becoming a full-time employee and the second commissioner of the league, taking over from Stotz in 1955.

Lindemuth helped organize the World Series as it transformed from a local tournament in the '40s to a national tournament in the '50s onto an international competition in the '60s. His connection to Lycoming never wavered, as he was named to the Athletics Hall of Fame in 1987 and also endowed a scholarship prize at the school in the '80s.

Others followed in the footsteps of Lindemuth. In 2006, Joe Losch '64 became senior vice president and corporate secretary for Little League Baseball, Inc., after rising in the ranks from working in the mail room at the start of his 39-year run of service that ended when he retired in 2007.

Warriors leave their mark

The links between the College and the youthful organization seemed to solidify by the late '40s, as members of the first Little League teams from the Williamsport area grew up and moved on to college. One of the most notable among those young men was Edward Younken, who threw the first no-hitter in Little League's history on Aug. 6, 1942, during a game between Stein's Service Station and Lumby Lumber.

Younken, who went on to become an All-American baseball player at Penn State, returned to Lycoming and finished his degree at Lycoming in 1953. After Lycoming, Younken went on to the seminary. He became a beloved minister in New Jersey, and was a champion of the U.S. Civil Rights Movement.

During that first national tournament, as the Maynard Little League beat Lock Haven, 16-7, in the finals, the talent on the field was undeniable. As the players from that team grew, several turned into fine athletes, and that got the notice of many of the coaches at the College that sat just a few miles from the fields on which the Maynard team played.

Five players from that first championship game graduated from Lycoming — Grieco, with the Lock Haven squad, and William Gallagher '57, Walt Dunston '57, Frank Wool '57 and Jimmy Sughrue '58 from the Maynard team. Grieco became a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. Gallagher and Dunston each played basketball at the College. Gallagher and Sughrue played baseball, with Sughrue earning the first Tomahawk Award as the school's Most Outstanding Male Athlete in 1958. He was later inducted into the Warriors' Athletics Hall of Fame.

Home-away-from-home

As the Little League World Series grew in stature and fan support, it became increasingly difficult for the motels in town to support all the fans and players. It didn't take long for Little League to seek the help of the College, and in 1953, the school became the home-away-from-home for the boys during the tournament, as all eight teams stayed in Rich Hall for the duration of the weeklong tournament.

As part of the event, Little League designed an educational program that revolved around the dormitory life, with Lycoming opening its swimming pool, tennis courts and gymnasium to the teams. George Baer, the College's football coach at the time, and President John Long greeted the teams at the beginning of the week and several Hall of Fame baseball players, including Lefty Gomez, Connie Mack and Cy Young, stopped by the dormitories in 1953 alone.

Ironically, the teams left Rich Hall in 1960 for space in the dormitories on-site at the South Williamsport fields — land that was sold mainly by Lycoming College to accommodate the growing event.

Seven inducted into Athletics Hall of Fame

Seven new members were inducted into the Warriors' Athletics Hall of Fame on Friday, Oct. 14, during Homecoming weekend. The class includes Steve Hawley '06 (men's swimming), Coach Deb Holmes (women's tennis), Meredith (Moerschbacher) Leader '03 (women's tennis), Jonathan Pribble '06 (men's basketball), Jim Rich '76 (football), Thomas Snyder '06 (wrestling) and Brian Thompson '99 (football).

Hawley wrapped up his career with a school-record six MAC titles and five school records. He notched three MAC titles at the 2004 championships, posting wins in the 50-yard freestyle and the 100-yard backstroke, as well as serving as the first leg in the 200-yard freestyle relay.

During a precision trip to Washington, D.C., to play George Mason University on Oct. 31, the men's basketball team visited several national landmarks, including the Albert Einstein Memorial Statue.

For 34 seasons, Holmes led the College's women's tennis team. She notched a school-record 137 wins, coached the team to 10 straight winning ledgers from 1993-2002 and led it to four regular-season conference titles (1981, 1997, 1998, 2000).

Leader posted a combined record of 81-10 on the tennis courts. A two-time First Team All-Freedom Conference selection, Leader went 44-6 in singles play and 37-4 in doubles.

Pribble earned conference Rookie of the Year, three all-conference honors and a league Player of the Year award during his basketball career. He also earned NAABC All-District honors as a junior and senior and D3Hoops.com all-region honors as a senior.

A four-year starter, Rich broke Lycoming's school record for receiving yardage with 363 yards in 1973. Two years later, he earned First Team All-MAC honors at defensive back to lead a unit that allowed the fewest yards per game in the NCAA. Snyder earned two All-American awards at heavyweight for the wrestling team. He compiled an 84-13 record with 27 falls and recorded three 20-win seasons. He placed at the MAC Championships in each of his four years, winning titles in 2004, 2005 and 2006.

Thompson racked up 3,267 yards, 649 attempts, 4,281 all-purpose yards, 34 touchdowns scored and 28 rushing touchdowns, all second in school history. In 1997, Thompson led the Warriors to the national championship game.

The 2011 Athletics Hall of Fame inductees include, from left: Brian Thompson '99, Steve Hawley '06, Jonathan Pribble '06, Jim Rich '76, Meredith Leader '03, Coach Deb Holmes and Thomas Snyder '06.

REFLECTIONS

Dear Friends,

I can't thank you enough for making my first Homecoming as your alumni director a sensational, unforgettable and downright FUN experience! It's amazing that we can take a campus full of alumni – both old friends and new faces – add the common denominator of great affection for our alma mater, and after just two days, walk away with incredible memories! The energy you brought to campus was overwhelming – thank you for your participation and support!

Speaking of being on campus, the first-ever Alumni Weekend is scheduled for May 11-13, 2012. It will be your opportunity to not only spend time at Lycoming, but live in the residence halls again. Some of the hallmark events being planned include a beer and wine tasting with faculty and coaches, alumni classes with some of your favorite professors (including Drs. Hughes, Feinstein, Newman, Madresheer and Piper), a Presidential Address, decade reunions and a tent night on the Quad with drinks, hors d'oeuvres, dinner and a live band. We will offer an all-inclusive "room and board" option for the weekend, as well as individual event registration for those who prefer to be "day students." Save the date!

Warmly,

A. Dowling
Amy S. Dowling '04

SAVE THE DATE

FIRST-EVER

ALUMNI
WEEKEND

MAY 11-13, 2012

Do you belong to an affinity group and wish to hold an event during Alumni Weekend 2012?

Contact Amy Dowling '04, director of alumni relations, at dowling@lycoming.edu or 570.321.4134, and she will be glad to help you to reserve a space on campus, reach out to specific alumni and answer any questions you may have about the weekend.

A Bicentennial Tailgate

On Friday, Sept. 17, 2011, Lycoming College participated in Preservation Williamsport's "A View from the Porch." The progressive evening gave participants the opportunity to visit five porches in historic downtown Williamsport and enjoy a traditional tailgate at each.

To celebrate our 200th year, the College transformed the porch of the Peter Herdic Inn (historic bed & breakfast by day) into a lively Warriors tailgate. The College Archives and sports teams graciously loaned artifacts and current gear to be displayed, offering the public a glimpse of our past and present.

Lycoming's cheerleaders added spirit to the rainy night, a local band, which included Steve Hulslander '74, entertained the crowd, staff served refreshments in jerseys and the Rev. Ben Crever even made an appearance! Most importantly, those in the Williamsport community helped Lycoming to celebrate its bicentennial year.

ALUMNI HAPPENINGS & GATHERINGS

Read more at www.lycoming.edu/alumni

Whitewater Rafting, Lehigh River Gorge • Sept. 3

Bobby Allen '99 and Casey Spencer '03

Casey Spencer '03, Amy Dowling '04, Krishna Allen '06, Bobby Allen '99, Sara Quintan '08, Amy Dadasist '09, Jessica Lawson '09 and Angie Seaward '06

Lycoming vs. Widener Soccer at PPL Park • Oct. 7

Pat Doody '95, Steve Catrone '95, Eric Szentesi '96 and Megan Szentesi '01

We survived the traffic on 476 to get here, now let's watch some soccer!

Duke's Happy Hour, Wormleysburg, Pa. • Sept. 14

Paul Gouddy '64 and his wife, Kathy

Lycoming vs. Westminster Football • Sept. 10

Dennis Hutchison '69 and Jay Tray '69

Warrior football parent Mary McNamara wins a sweatshirt presented by Joe Bounce '63 and Glenn Smith '07

Patricia (Zimmer) '75 and Anthony '74 Langliana

Dave Freer '68, Richard Raudenbough '60 and Bill Gallagher '70

Warrior Pride!

Joe Bounce '63, Sandy McNeil '63, Phil Anders '65 and Dave Roberts '77 catch up at Barnaby's of Ridley after the Widener football game.

Darryl Frailey, Josh Born, Marsha Born '04 and Bill Gallagher '70

UPCOMING events

VISIT www.lycoming.edu/alumniSaturday, Jan. 28 - The Poconos, Pa.

Lycoming College Day at Jack Frost/Big Boulder

The fun begins at 8 a.m.

Bring your family and friends for a day of skiing and tubing at Jack Frost Big Boulder. Meet across from the cafeteria at Jack Frost anytime between 7:45 and 9 a.m. to pick up your snow passes and enjoy a day on the slopes! We will establish a "Lycoming College" area to stash your gear that will also serve as our central meeting spot for hot chocolate breaks throughout the day!

Snow Passes

$37 per adult Age 16+
$30 per youth Ages 5-15 (10 a.m. to 1 p.m. or 1 to 4 p.m.)
*additional fee for equipment rentals and lessons, if desired
RSVP by Jan. 22

Saturday, Feb. 4 - Williamsport, Pa.7th Annual Black History Month Dinner

Lycoming College, Jane Schultz Room, 2nd Floor Wertz Student Center • 6 p.m.
Join us in honoring Black History Month with hors d'oeuvres, dinner and a guest speaker

$20 per person, RSVP by Jan. 26

Saturday, Feb. 11 - Williamsport, Pa.

Alumni Night at the Mary L. Welch Theatre

Back: Three Plays by Neil LaBute • 8 p.m.

Lycoming's Theatre Department is proud to welcome home two alumni as guest artists, director Bridget Leak '05 and actor Dustin Crouse '04. This production of Back, also featuring actor Dana Leigh Snyder, will first be produced in New York City in January 2012. This disturbing collection of one-act plays explores the nature of evil as it invades the everyday lives of seemingly ordinary people. Crimes are committed, but playwright Neil LaBute doesn't condemn or redeem his characters; he leaves the judging to us.

Recommended for mature audiences due to adult language and situations.

8 p.m.

Back: Three Plays

9:30 p.m. Talk Back with the Company

10 p.m. Reception in the Mary L. Welch Theatre lobby

For reservations, call the Box Office at 570.321.4048 and mention that you are with the alumni party.

$10 General Admission, $8 Students and Seniors

Tuesday, Feb. 14 - Williamsport, Pa.

Williamsport Symphony Bicentennial Reception

Community Arts Center, 101 West Fourth Street • 6:15 p.m.

Mingle with Lycoming alumni, staff and friends while enjoying passed hors d'oeuvres in the Capitol Lounge prior to Professor Dr. Gary Boerckel's pre-concert talk. Discounted tickets to the Williamsport Symphony's performance of "Invitation to Dance" are available to alumni by calling the community arts center box office at 570.322.2424 and mentioning the coupon code "Symphony03."

6:15 p.m. Bicentennial Reception, Capitol Lounge

7 p.m. Pre-Concert Talk, Capitol Lounge

7:30 p.m. Williamsport Symphony Orchestra presents

"Invitation to Dance," Theatre

RSVP by Feb. 8

Saturday, Feb. 25 - Williamsport, Pa.

Black Tie Affair and Nothing But Trouble

Community Theatre League, 100 West Third Street, Williamsport • 7:30 p.m.
Black Tie Affair, which features T.J. McCabe '06, Andrew Paulhamus '13, James Rogers '04, Peter Ruhl '06 and Casey Spencer '05, are teaming up with Nothing But Trouble. Each group sings hip arrangements of classic and modern rock songs, and will even perform a few songs together! Join us for the concert and gather afterward at Barrel 135 to meet the performers!

$10 per person, RSVP by Feb. 17

Friday, March 2 - Philadelphia, Pa.

Student and Alumni Meet and Greet

Ladder 15, 1528 Sansom Street, Philadelphia, Pa. • 5 to 7 p.m.

Drop by to meet Lycoming seniors who are job shadowing alumni in Philadelphia. Share your memories and experiences with the students while networking with alumni who live and/or work in the City of Brotherly Love.

Saturday, April 14 - Seneca Lake, N.Y.

N.Y. Winery Bus Tour • 7:30 a.m., depart campus from Academic Center parking lot

Spend the day with Lycoming alumni and friends touring a variety of wineries on Seneca Lake. We will enjoy tastings at Glenora Wine Cellars, Fulkerson Winery, Lakewood Vineyards, Hazlet 1852 Vineyards and Penguin Bay Winery. A box lunch will be provided. Tasting fees included. We will stop at Bleacher's in Watkins Glen on the way home for dinner on your own. All participants must be 21 or older and bring photo identification.

$50 per person, RSVP by April 7

2011 alumni association award-winners Anthony DiSalvo '54 and William Byham, second and third from the left, respectively, are joined by ALAB President Dr. Heather Duda '98, left; President James Dodaro and Amy Dowling '04, director of alumni relations. Gene Dodaro '73 was unable to attend.

Lycoming College congratulates the following award-winners, who were recognized during Homecoming festivities on Oct. 15. The recipients are chosen each year by the Alumni Association Executive Board.

Angela R. Kyte
Outstanding Alumnus Award

Given in honor of an alumnus/a who has demonstrated a lifetime of service to humanity and whose life exemplifies those qualities encouraged and fostered at the College.

Anthony DiSalvo Jr. '54 has dedicated a lifetime of service to the Williamsport community, particularly devoting his time to volunteer projects involving youth. He has held multiple positions with the Boy Scouts of America. His numerous scouting recognition awards include the Silver Beaver, Silver Antelope, Eagle Scout Award, Award of Merit, Order of the Arrow and the Scoutmaster Key, among others. DiSalvo is a volunteer with the National Flag Foundation, for which he chairs a local chapter. He founded the annual Flag Day March in Williamsport and makes frequent visits to local schools teaching children the history and proper handling and flying of the American flag. DiSalvo retired from Textron Lycoming in Williamsport as the director of plant engineering after 42 years of service. He and his wife, Kathleen, reside in Williamsport and are the parents of three children.

Outstanding Achievement Award

Given in recognition of an alumnus/a who has achieved a significant accomplishment that reflects positively on Lycoming College.

Gene Dodaro '73 is the eighth comptroller general for the U.S. General Accounting Office in Washington, D.C. Gene joined the GAO in 1973 and in 1993, was named assistant comptroller general for Accounting and Information Management. He was promoted to the chief operating officer of the GAO in October 2000 and held his post until March of 2008. On Dec. 22, 2010, Dodaro was confirmed by the U.S. Senate and began his 15-year term as comptroller general of the United States. He returned to campus in 2009 as the Harding Lecture speaker. Dodaro is married to the former Joan McCabe and has three children.

Dale V. Bower Service Award

Given to an individual for outstanding service rendered to Lycoming College. The recipient may or may not be a Lycoming alumnus/a.

William Byham is considered a local media icon. He was an on-air and play-by-play announcer for many local high school and Lycoming College sporting events. Byham has worked in the press box at the Little League World Series since 1959. In 2002, during his 44th Little League World Series, the press box section at the Little League Volunteer Stadium was named in his honor. He retired from teaching at South Williamsport High School in 1984 and became the College's first full-time sports information director, a position he held until 1992. Byham publicized the football team's run to the 1990 national championship game and 23 All-Americans during his tenure. He writes a column for Webb Weekly and can still be heard on the radio nationwide each summer during the Little League World Series. Byham is married to the former Nellie Swartz and they have two children.

Award-Winners

Lycoming College
Alumni Association
Executive Board

Clark Gaughan '77
President

Christine (Colella) Zubris '04
1st Vice President

William Hesser '85
Secretary

Wendy (Park) Myers '89
Treasurer

Melany (McGillivray) An '07
Dr. Kimberly (Lazar) Bolig '79

Andrew Buck '71

Joseph Bunce III '63

James Burget '72

John Casciano '05

Anne Marie DiSante '06

Austin Duckett '02

Dr. Heather Duda '98

Past President

Dr. Shannon (Keane) English '94

Richard Felix '56

Dr. William Gallagher III '70

Rev. Robert Graybill '73

Dr. Joanne Hullings '79

Capt. John Lea III '80

Rev. Dr. Andy Lunt '66

Nancy Maple '91

Lindsay Martin '07

Rev. Dr. Ronald McElwee '71

Andrea (Duncan) Mitchellree '01

April (Sparks) Orwig '98

Capt. Richard Raudabaugh '60

Dr. Linda (Wabschal) Ross '69

Michael Rudy '05

Kurt Weirich '90

Michele (Connors) Witowski '06

Ann (Bell) Wood '73

Class Notes submissions:

Lyscoming College wants to join you in celebrating your career and life accomplishments. You may wish to share information about a birth, wedding, anniversary, career move, retirement, life-changing experience, etc. We reserve the right to edit submissions to meet Lyscoming Magazine style guidelines and space limitations. Only activities that have already taken place will be included in Class Notes.

Photo submissions: Please feel free to submit printed and high-resolution digital photos. Because of space limitations, we cannot publish every photo we receive, but your chances improve if your digital photos are of good quality and at least 300 dpi at a canvas size of 3x5. Lower resolution pictures may look sharp on your computer screen, but will not reproduce well in the magazine.

Information received after Oct. 21, 2011, will be used in a future issue of the magazine.

Send your Class Notes

information to:

- a) Class scribe
- b) Alumni Office
- Lyscoming College
- 700 College Place
- Williamsport, PA 17701
- c) E-mail: alumni@lyscoming.edu

Please be advised that as a result of our online posting and archiving of the magazine, information included in Class Notes may become publicly available and searchable through the Internet.

1948
Carl Andrews (social studies) and his wife, Jennette, celebrated their 56th wedding anniversary May 1, 2011. He has been retired from his role as executive director of the Boys & Girls Clubs of Indianapolis since 1989.

1949
Charlotte Plisan (medical secretary) has worked at Georgetown University Medical School, the CIA Medical Office, and Northrop-Grumman-TASC Division in Northern Virginia. She resides in Springfield, Va.

1951
Warren Baughman (history) was recognized for his 65 years of ministry in May 2011. On June 28, 2011, he and his wife, Doris, celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary.

1952
Ralph Marion
rmarrionjr@bellsouth.net

1954
Rev. James Horace Gold
(570) 966-0330
jegold@atlanticbb.net

1957
Walter Dunston and the late Armando Testa '58 were recently inducted into Pennsylvania's West Branch Sports Hall of Fame. Walter was a catcher on the 1947 Maynard Little League Team All-Stars, which won the first Little League World Championship, and played basketball at Lyscoming. Armando lettered in football and wrestling at Williamsport Area High School and became its first District 4 wrestling champion in 1954. After four years in the U.S. Air Force, he earned an undergraduate degree from Lyscoming. He taught and coached wrestling, track and football in South Williamsport.

1959
Beverly (Strauser) Manbeck
Ladypink10@aol.com

Paul Motta
(business administration) was honored by the alumni association and athletics office of Delaware County Community College for 40 years of service with the baseball team on May 1, 2011. He began working for the College in 1971 and led the team to nine conference championships, including a 16-0 undefeated season in 2010.

1960
Dr. Norman Medow (biology) recently accepted a position as the director of pediatric ophthalmology and strabismus and faculty member at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, Montefiore Medical Center and The Children's Hospital at Montefiore in the Bronx, N.Y.

1962
Geoffrey R. Wood
(252) 636-0508
gwood8@suddenlink.net

1963
Evelyn (McConnell) Derrick ederrick@windstream.net

Buz Fretz (biology) is retired and has two great-grandchildren. He remarried in May 2005.

1964
Bill Lawry
(860) 658-7217
wlawry@aol.com

1965
Nancy (Snow) Cross
(540) 721-0003
crosswindnsc@yahoo.com

Dr. Richard Clancy recently retired after 33 years of practicing as a chiropractic physician in Sarasota, Fla. He served on the board of the Florida Chiropractic Association and as president and chairman for the Southwest Chiropractic Society.

1966
Kitty (Traxler) Morrison
(706) 398-3789
jinkitty@jimmktty.com

Business and Service Applauded

Lyscoming College trustee, Dale Krapf '67, was named CEO of the Year by the Chester County (Pa.) Chamber of Business and Industry in recognition of his business successes, leadership activities and community service. Krapf is chair of Krapf Bus

Dale Krapf '67

Companies, a family-owned third generation business which recently became the sixth largest bus operator in the nation, with a fleet of more than 2,600 vehicles and nearly 3,300 employees. Krapf Bus Companies operate in Delaware, Illinois, Minnesota, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Through his leadership in the Chester County Chamber, Krapf was instrumental in the creation of the Chester County Chamber Foundation. His passion for giving children the opportunity to flourish and grow influenced the creation of the foundation's youth leadership program, designed to help the county's youth better understand how they can contribute to their communities in the future. Leading by example, the Krapf Bus Companies award a scholarship each year to a deserving graduate in each area high school that uses its buses.

In 2008, Krapf and his wife, Nannette, established the Dale and Nannette Krapf Endowed Scholarship Fund at Lyscoming College. It is awarded to students demonstrating financial need. Krapf earned a bachelor's degree at Lyscoming in 1967, majoring in business administration.

Krapf has been a member of the Lyscoming College Board of Trustees for 18 years and serves as board secretary. He is a member of the board of directors of the United Bus Association, and the past president of both the National School Transportation Association and the Pennsylvania School Bus Association. In recognition of his contributions to the industry, the NSTA presented him with its Hall of Fame Award in 2005 and Distinguished Service Award in 1994.

From left, Lunee (Shipo) Howell, Mary Lu Wilson and Louise (Glicker) Shin gather for a Class of 1966 mini-reunion in Williamsburg, Va.

Sigma Pi fraternity brothers reunite at their sixth annual reunion held in Saratoga Springs, N.Y. Standing from left are: Tim Lavey, Chris Jetter, Ron York and Bill Donovan. Seated are Bob Depuy, Dick Wilbur and Carl Heide.

1969

Tom McElheny
tmcelheny@churchplaza.com

1970

Susan Stewart
susanstewart@hotmail.com

1971

Jon "Craig" Koons
(570) 587-3928
koons71_scribble@yahoo.com

Russell Stocum (English) has co-authored "The Bit Ching Book of Change: Reinterpreting the Ancient Wisdom of The I Ching to Deal with Modern Day Morons and Confusion," available on amazon.com.

Russ is the head of The Stocum Group ad agency.

1972

Linda (Burton) Kochanov
(203) 744-0393
kuchi3@aol.com

The Nau grandchildren

Martin Nau (biology) welcomed his second grandchild, Preston Martin Nau, in May. He joins brother, Alley Hirai Nau, and parents, Ryan, Martin's oldest son, and Maki.

1973

Virginia "Ginny" Shanlian
virginiashanlian@yahoo.com or virginiashanlian@yahoo.com
Sherrie (Burton) Smith
(410) 280-9086
sandrsmith@verizon.net

The Tempe Healing Fields

Ira Donsky and his wife, Carol Campbell, honored the three Lyncoming alumni who died in the 9/11 attacks with flags at the Tempe Healing Fields in Tempe, Ariz.: Angela (Vaira) Kye '73, Justin Molsani '81 and Jon Vandevander '79. The eighth annual event displayed nearly 3,000 U.S. flags. Suzanne (Smith) Culin (English) has relocated to Ocean View, Del., since retiring from elementary teaching in Clifton, N.J. She has joined several organizations including the Lord Baltimore Women's Club and the South Coastal Chapter of AARP.

Dorothy Everhart '73

Dorothy Everhart (religion) has retired from her hospice and home health medical social work to care full-time for her partner, Kay. They reside in Lenoyne, Pa. Dorothy was surprised in August with a 60th birthday party attended by "Rich Hall roommate" Carol (Applemann) Chaapel, Carol "Missy" (Marshall) Schoch (music) was recognized as one of radio station 760 WJR's "Women Who Lead."

Three art alumni returned to campus on Friday, Oct. 14, to discuss art in their respective fields. Sharing stories on their careers and achievements were, from left, art collector Barbara Sylk '73, art educator Michael Badi '04, and photographer Jaime DeMarco '01.

for her work in founding the Detroit Children's Choir.

Barbara Sylk (art) is devoting more time to painting and working on portraits. She is a trustee at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, and involved with the Greater Philadelphia Cultural Alliance. She has also helped to curate several shows, including one for Burlington County College in her hometown of Mt. Holly, N.J.

Bernie Zook (philosophy) recently received a Lifetime Achievement Award from the Pennsylvania Prison Warden's Association for more than 35 years of service in the field of corrections. He has worked at the Mifflin County Correctional Facility since 1988, and was appointed warden in 2002. He is vice chairman of the Mifflin County Criminal Justice Advisory Board, serves on the Community That Cares (CTC) Prevention Board, and is vice chairman of the Faith-Based Initiative action team of the CTC. He serves on the advisory committee for the criminal justice program at South Hills School of Business and Technology in Lewistown, Pa., and is also a trustee and member of the board at the Bethel AME Church in Lewistown.

1974
Sherry L. Macpherson (856) 765-1476
stmacp@aol.com
Dr. Louisa Barnhart (philosophy) has been appointed to the Maine Board of Licensure in Medicine. She is a psychiatrist with Maine General Hospital as the medical director of assertive community treatment and of chemical dependency services.

1974
Sherry L. Macpherson (856) 765-1476
stmacp@aol.com

Dr. Louisa Barnhart (philosophy) has been appointed to the Maine Board of Licensure in Medicine. She is a psychiatrist with Maine General Hospital as the medical director of assertive community treatment and of chemical dependency services.

The Rev. Dr. Barry Dawson (political science) recently moved from Tokyo, Japan, to Muscat in the Sultanate of Oman on the Arabian Peninsula. The Reformed Church in America appointed him as its new pastor of the Protestant Church in Oman, an interdenominational, multicultural congregation that has members from 45 countries. The highly diverse Christian community within the context of a Muslim nation that practices religious tolerance provides Barry with a dynamic environment that is rich with unique learning opportunities and enriching cultural experiences. He previously was the senior pastor of Tokyo Union Church.

Pam (Bateman) Whiteaker (English) has accepted a position as manager of group tours and volunteer services at The Dali Museum in St. Petersburg, Fla. The museum opened in January 2011 and houses the largest comprehensive collection of Salvador Dali's work outside of Spain.

1975
Gail (Gleason) Beamer (508) 460-0682
Beamette@aol.com

1976
Tom Eisenman (567) 304-8889
tne4580@syahoo.com

The Rev. Haydn McLean (biology) had the article, "Hoary Wisdom," accepted for publication by "The Journal of Pastoral Care and Counseling."

1977
Brian Leonard (703) 220-8121
unclebrian@brianleonard.net

1978
Edward and Jane (Snyder) Bird fish1156@sbcbglobal.net

Rick Barletta (mathematics) was named to the Hazelton (Pa.) Area Sports Hall of Fame. He is an accomplished tennis player and coach, in addition to having coached girls' basketball. He recently retired as a math teacher from the Hazelton Area School District.

1979
John Piazza (570) 321-1818
johnpiazza3@verizon.net

1980
Roy Crowe roycrowe@optonline.net

The Road to Apple

By Megan Frank '12

For the last 10 years, Michael Pinkman '82 has worked for one of the world's most innovative companies. But, he admits, his path to becoming the senior director of sales for Apple had its fair share of bumps.

After earning a business degree from Lyncoming, Pinkman worked for a couple of software companies and then, after being contacted by a business acquaintance, moved to Nashville to work. Soon after, his employer offered him a job in Buffalo, which he kindly turned down, because he had "no interest in moving to Buffalo at the time." Instead, he took the company's offer of a position in California. After the company went through a series of acquisitions, Pinkman decided it was time for a change. He was then hired at a start-up company, Adobe Systems.

After 11 years in sales with Adobe, he had a desire to "strike out on my own during the Internet craze." Though he was able to remain more successful than many competitors at the time, the pay-off wasn't what he had hoped. Looking for a new opportunity, Pinkman reconnected with various Adobe Systems alumni, and eventually, with a former colleague and mentor who led him to Apple, where he has been ever since.

Pinkman now manages a sales team responsible for more than a billion dollars of Apple's current revenue, predominantly in the commercial market place. He has not only been able to see the launch of the iPod, iPhone and iPad, but he's been able to witness Apple become a hundred billion dollar company.

For Pinkman, working for Apple is unlike working for any other company. "It's the attention to detail," said Pinkman. "It's the focus on that detail. I think it's the pride in building great products. I think it's the pride in the overall brand. I don't know how many years in a row it is that Apple has been voted most innovative company or best brand, but you take a lot of pride in that when you get up every day and you give your heart and soul to the company. These products in many ways really do change people's lives and so to be part of all that is tremendous."

In recalling his time at Lyncoming, Pinkman points to former Professor Elizabeth King, who taught accounting and finance.

"She was probably 5'4" and 100 pounds soaking wet; just this fireball," said Pinkman. "She made us all read The Wall Street Journal every day and asked us questions about it. You couldn't scrape by in her class because she'd call you out on it. She was super bright, funny and engaging, so it was a great experience. Looking back, I realize how important it was that she challenged us; I needed somebody to do that for me."

Louis Paolillo

(business administration) was hired as a financial advisor at First Financial Federal Credit Union's Investment and Retirement Center. He was most recently a financial advisor at Wells Fargo. He also coaches youth basketball and volunteers as the vice president of the Red Bank Catholic Athletic Booster Club. Louis resides in Freehold, N.J., with his wife and two children.

1983

Joe Bours (accounting) was recently appointed chief operating officer for the Atlanta-based company, Healthcare Solutions.

1984

Lynn Cruickshank lymnacip@yahoo.com

1985

Theo (Gude) Truch (908) 956-1273
theotruch@gmail.com

1986

Patricia (Dempsey) Hutchinson (610) 768-0404 mphutch@msn.com

Jim Minick (English) received the Best Nonfiction Book of the Year Award from Southern Independent Booksellers Association for "The Blueberry Years."

1987

Tina Muhlem
(215) 574-0160
tmuhlem@colpenn.com

1988

Cindy (Smith) Snyderman
(610) 558-0998
stealthed@aol.com

John Sames (business management) is an insurance executive for Marsh & McLennan Agency, part of the Marsh Group – the largest insurance broker in the world. He lives in Redding, N.J., with his wife, Kim, and three children: Alec, Daniella and Ava.

1989

Wendy (Park) Myers
(610) 444-2629
timwendym@comcast.net

1990

Courtenay (Wells) Arendt
(410) 561-0909
gatormom40@gmail.com

Joe Wade (business management) and his family recently opened the Jamison Pour House, a family pub in Central Bucks County, Pa. He and his wife, Janeen, have three children: Karley, Colin and Keegan.

1991

Malena (DeMore) Pearson
(570) 651-9575
malpearl@comcast.net

Theta Chi fraternity brothers reunite at the wedding of Eric Relf '91. Picture left to right are Kevin Coffey '89, Bob Williams '91, Relf and Todd Braccio '90.

Craig Gordon '91 and his wife, Fay, with son, Jay, during his bar mitzvah in May at the Virginia Holocaust Museum.

Craig Gordon (biology) is a registered nurse in the cardiac catheterization lab at Chippendale Medical Center in Richmond, Va.

Nancy Marple (communication) is the senior marketing manager for the Radiological Society of North America in Oak Brook, Ill. She resides in Chicago.

Dana Miller (communication) earned a doctorate of education from the Indiana University of Pennsylvania in May 2011. She resides in Trout Run, Pa., and is a librarian for the Southern Tioga School District.

Michael Pearson (psychology) is a linebacker coach with the Mansfield University sprint football team. His 20 years of coaching experience include the last three years as head coach at South Williamsport High School and seven years as an assistant coach at Lycoming.

1992

Julie Makatche Collins
(610) 644-2892
julmak70@hotmail.com

Jeremy Owens (Near East studies) recently published "What Is Life And Who Am I? Fundamental Principles of the Primordial Philosophy." The book is available through Authorhouse.com, Amazon.com and BarnesandNoble.com.

1993

Andrea (Ruble) Miller
(410) 353-5437
amproducer@aol.com

Scott Burke (business management) was ordained as a pastor June 12, 2011, at East Lawrenceville Baptist Church, where he is an intern and serves as a deacon. Scott works at a local credit union and is attending Grace Baptist Bible College. He and his wife, Ann, reside in Lawrenceville, Pa., and have three daughters: Erin, Elizabeth and Sarah.

Joseph Farrell (business management) was recently appointed to a one-term on the board of trustees of the Bear Creek Community Charter School. He earned an M.B.A. from Wilkes University and is a senior manager at Kraft Foods. He and his wife, Candice, reside in Bear Creek Township, Pa., and have three children: Ella, Logan and Ivy.

John Phillips (communication) is the athletic director at Immaculata High School in Leavenworth, Kan. He and his wife, Jessica, have two sons, Jack and Joey.

Karin (Plummer) Botto (theatre) was recently promoted to director of organizational learning and leadership at Saint Joseph's University in Philadelphia.

1994

Michele (Wlrowski) Hogan
shelhogan3@gmail.com

Shannon (Keane) English (philosophy) was appointed by Gov. Rick Snyder to the Michigan Commission on Services to the Aging, a 15-member body advising the governor and legislature on issues that affect the state's older citizens. Shannon is a physician at Advantage Health Saint Mary's Medical Group in Grand Rapids. She also serves as a clinical assistant professor for the Michigan State University College of Human Medicine and a consulting staff member for the Mecosta County Medical Center.

1995

Bob Martin
(908) 326-3044
martin180@aol.com

1996

Angela (Dakshaw) Sweeney
(610) 705-3530

Brobson Brings Court Back Home

Countless people, for one reason or another, have appeared in the Lycoming County Courthouse in Williamsport. For Montoursville native Judge P. Kevin Brobson '92, his reason was to take part in a joint ceremonial session of the Court of Common Pleas of Lycoming County and the Commonwealth Court of Pennsylvania on Friday, Sept. 16.

"This is a special and historic day for both courts," Brobson said to the courtroom packed with lawyers, judges and interested members of the public. "It marks to the best of my knowledge the first time in the Commonwealth Court's 40-year history that it ever sat in special session in Lycoming County. I grew up down the road in Montoursville and was educated only a few blocks away at Lycoming College. So this day is particularly special to me as it gives me an opportunity to showcase my home county to my colleagues on the Commonwealth Court. I'd also like to recognize and thank the members of the administration, faculty and students from Lycoming College who were able to join us today."

According to Brobson, the Commonwealth Court is the least known of the three statewide courts and probably the least understood. Its role as both a trial court and an appellate court makes it unique. He says the court's role in state government is on one hand simple and on the other hand critical.

"The Commonwealth Court is the court that makes sure government, state and local, follows the law," said Brobson. "I know of no other state where citizens have to hope that you agree with me that this makes the Commonwealth government. I hope that you agree with me that this makes the Commonwealth Court a special and valuable asset of our judicial system in Pennsylvania."

Established in 1970, the Commonwealth Court and is one of two appellate courts in the state. It typically handles matters involving municipal and state entities and hears arguments in Harrisburg, Philadelphia or Pittsburgh. The court's special session is part of an ongoing effort to share what it does throughout the state.

Brobson was elected to the appellate court in 2009. Lycoming County Judge Dudley Anderson '68 was among the nearly 15 judges in attendance at the joint session.

P. Kevin Brobson '92

Michael Downey (business management) was inducted into the Allen-Rogowicz Chapter of the Pennsylvania Sports Hall of Fame. While at Lycoming, he was named to the Division III Football Gazette, Sporting News and Street and Smith's All-America football teams. He is a works career services director for Berks Technical Institute and resides in Pottsville, Pa., with his wife, Tracy.

Stanley Kadeliski (political science) was promoted to senior vice president of ATM operations for TD Bank, where he is responsible for the operational integrity of all the bank's ATMs across North America. He will be based in Cherry Hill, N.J. and Toronto, Canada.

1997

Lauren Kolaya
(908) 755-5710 or
(908) 962-0816
lyco97@aol.com
or
Kirsten (Schwalb) Miller
(570) 888-6486

Matthew J. Kator (theatre) is the technical director/lead designer at Tower Hill School in Wilmington, Del. Matt has also been the technical director of the New Jersey Ballet and for Quilman Scenic Studios, and assistant technical director for ShowMotion, Inc., where he worked on the Broadway revival of "The Sound of Music." Subsequently, he spent 10 years as the technical director/production manager for the Upper Darby Performing Arts Center. Matt is collaborating with MAZEPPA Productions in Philadelphia. He and his wife, Tiffany '98, have three children.

1998

Brenda (Bowser) Soder
(301) 598-5526
brendasoder@verizon.net

Tiffani (Blaski) Kator has been promoted to director of foundation relations at Widener University, where she has worked the past 13 years, most recently as assistant director of corporate and foundation relations, and assistant dean of student life. She lives in Boothwyn, Pa. with her husband, Matthew '97, and their children Aislynn, Mason and Quinn.

1999

Heather Myers
(570) 244-8914
hm7793@aol.com

Bobby Allen (philosophy) is the manager of The Sleep/Wake Disorders Center at St. Mary Medical Center in Langhorne and Bensalem, Pa. He also returned to the position of grand province advisor for Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity in the Keystone Province, which includes Lycoming and seven other collegiate chapters in central Pennsylvania.

Bart Makatache (communication) is a senior/executive producer at Nancy Glass productions. Located in Bala Cynwyd, Pa., the company produces reality television programming for HGTV, DIY, A&E, WE and Animal Planet.

The Best Situation

Dr. Rachel (Lawton) Teribury '99 told the College's biology colloquium at which she spoke in September that she always wanted to be a veterinarian. In choosing a college, she was simply looking for the best situation to get her to her end goal.

Lycoming was the perfect stepping stone for the aspiring doctor. "It was a smaller, homier environment and I thought I would do better here than at a larger facility. I also looked into the acceptance rate into medical school and it was comparable or better than other private schools."

While at Lycoming, Teribury worked diligently, and not just in the classroom. "I had a little bit different experience, I think, than other students," she said. "I paid for college completely, so I had several jobs. My schedule was pretty full with sports [lacrosse], academics and working to finance my education." Her focus, though, always remained on getting into veterinary school; she even skipped one of her lacrosse games to present at a Pennsylvania Academy of Science conference.

The rigors of Teribury's undergraduate experience paid off when she was accepted into Cornell University's College of Veterinary Medicine—one of the best programs in the country. Now, she works at a small animal practice in Linden, Pa., and consults in Indiana, Ohio, Maryland and New York. Busy as ever, the full-time veterinarian and her husband, Earl, are also the parents of four boys, including a set of twins.

"I'm proud of what I've done and that a small school such as Lycoming has been able to facilitate my career," she said. "I felt very secure when I went to Cornell. I'm also proud to come back and share with Lycoming students that may wonder if they made the right college choice. I'm able to say yes, I think they did."

Dr. Jeff Newman, associate professor of biology, with Dr. Rachel (Lawton) Teribury '99.

2000

Thomas McHugh (business-marketing) is serving as a managing director and head of the Structured Products trading desk for The PrinciEdge Group, LLC, and institutional broker dealer in New York City.

Amanda Morgan (psychology) recently accepted a position with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as an HR analyst. She also volunteers with Primac Health Auxiliary and is training for her next figure competition in 2012.

Amanda Morgan '99

Amanda (Peterman) Dalla Piazza (570) 546-9440
Harbingerr@hottmail.com

Amy (Mayschock) Bortz (business-marketing) became the new deputy director for Union County Domestic Relations in Lewisburg, Pa., in August, in preparation to become director in January 2012.

2001

Andrea (Duncan) Mitchellree (908) 850-4525
seedthree@gmail.com

2002

Austin Duckett (610) 213-7504
ducaust776@hotmail.com
or
Sharon (Rogers) Rotundo
SharonR6300@aol.com

Joshua Albeck (history) was promoted to product manager at Warren Control Inc. in Bethlehem, Pa., where he has been employed for six years.

Erin Dunleavy (biology) is starting her own tourism/recreation/outdoor education-based business, Woodland View Adventures, which offers outdoor adventure camps, high ropes courses and guided horseback trail rides. She resides in Jersey Shore, Pa.

Elizabeth McNassor-Harris (English literature) is a sales representative for Takeda Pharmaceuticals. She resides in Williamsport with her husband, Andy, and their daughter, Juliet.

2003

Charlene (Bartolotta) Sterphone bartolotta123@yahoo.com

James Goslee (economics) recently joined the Philadelphia law firm of Cohen, Placitella & Roth as an attorney.

Greg Care '03, right, traveled in August to Tanzania, where he had the opportunity to go on safari and climb Mt. Kilimanjaro.

Dr. Angela Huggler (biology) has joined the Susquehanna Health Medical Group, where she practices obstetrics and gynecology. She earned a medical degree from the Pennsylvania State University College of Medicine and completed an OB/GYN residency at Hershey Medical Center.

Adam and Brian Makos '06 were recently featured in an episode of "House Hunters" on the HGTV network after relocating to the Denver, Colo., area.

Jacqueline (Stires) Schap (psychology) was promoted to program supervisor of the Intensive In-Home Program at Pressley Ridge in York, Pa. She previously served as an in-home family therapist.

Rob Scott (communication) was hired as the local editor of the Moorestown (N.J.) Patch. He previously worked at the Danville News and the Daily Item in Danville, Pa., and, most recently, was a political reporter for The Gloucester County Times.

2004

Christine Colella mischcristine@hotmail.com

Julia Maier (communication, psychology) earned a doctorate of philosophy degree in psychology from Iowa State University in August. She is a visiting assistant professor of psychology at Saint Francis University in Loretto, Pa.

Dr. Jason Sweeley (biology) recently finished his residency at Pinnacle Health System and has joined the podiatric practice of Jeffrey Marks in Mechanicsburg, Pa.

2005

Kristen Dart darkris33@hotmail.com

Kirby Brookhart

(biology, psychology) has accepted an R.N. position in the medical intensive care unit at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, Md. Carrie Firman (art) received a Love of Learning Award, which help fund post-baccalaureate studies and/or career development for active Phi Kappa Phi members.

Dr. Erin Karschner

(biology, chemistry) earned a doctorate in toxicology from the University of Maryland-Baltimore in August 2010.

She completed her doctoral dissertation work and a one-year postdoctoral fellowship through the National Institute on Drug Abuse, and received the Society of Forensic Toxicologists Educational Research Award in 2009 and the American Academy of Forensic Sciences Toxicology Section K. Jones Scholarship Award in 2010. Erin recently accepted a position as a research scientist for Aegis Sciences Corporation in Nashville, Tenn., a forensic sciences company providing toxicology and consulting services.

Michelle Stine (psychology) was recently appointed assistant athletic director at Immaculata University.

Bradley Webb (history) has accepted a position as director of student affairs administration at the Pennsylvania College of Technology.

2006

Michele (Connors) Witowski mconnors@inbox.com

or
Janie (Hershey) Arnold herjani@hotmail.com

▼ Ryan Rhed '06, center, returned to campus in September as a guest lecturer in a federal income tax class taught by Professor Richard Wienceke '06. Ryan is a CPA and manager at Baker Tilly Vitchow Krause, LLP in Virginia.

Kate Pescavage

(psychology) earned a master's degree in elementary and secondary school counseling from West Chester University, and recently accepted an elementary school counselor position with the Council Rock School District. She resides in Harboro, Pa.

2007

Laura (Holdridge) Layau holdridge@hotmail.com

Stephanie (Savino) Howell (French, international studies) joined the firm of Pepper Hamilton LLP as an associate in its commercial litigation practice group. She earned a J.D. from The Dickinson School of Law, where she served as comments editor of the Penn State Law Review.

2008

Anil Gizman anilgizman@gmail.com

Melissa (Spink) Kiehl (astronomy, physics) earned teaching certification in mathematics and has accepted a math instructor position at North Idaho College for the 2011-12 academic year.

Tara Robuck (psychology) was recently hired as an elementary guidance counselor by the Midd-West School District in Middleburg, Pa.

Elizabeth (Runyan) Parrish (art) recently exhibited her artwork at the new Grey Art Gallery in downtown Williamsport.

2009

Ashley Wislock awislock@gmail.com

Lauren Kaczmarezyk (biology) earned a master's degree in biomedical sciences from Nova Southeastern University in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in May, and is now attending the university's medical school.

Brendan Mahoney (computer science) earned a master's degree in computer graphics and game technology from the University of Pennsylvania in August.

Ashley (Cless) Roman (biology) earned a master's of medical science from the physician assistant program at Arcadia University in May 2011. She is now a certified physician assistant at Geisinger Medical Center in Danville, Pa.

2010

Pamela Burke
(973) 270-3765
PBurke2010@gmail.com
Jordan Hollander
(908) 872-7525
jshollander@gmail.com

Cpl. Holly Andrews (political science) recently completed the ninth month U.S. Marine Corps meteorology and oceanography analyst forecaster course at Keeler Air Force Base in Biloxi, Miss. She is now stationed at Marine Corps Air Station Iwakuni, Japan, where she was promoted to the non-commissioned officer rank of corporal on Oct. 1, 2011.

Jordan Hollander (political science) earned a master's of science in comparative European politics from Trinity College in Dublin, Ireland. He is enrolled at Rutgers School of Law-Camden as a Forensics of Justice Scholar.

Jillian McMahon (corporate communication, Spanish) recently accepted a position with the U.S. Department of Defense.

2011

Bethany Herring
(717) 856-8121
bherring21@gmail.com

Kaitlyn Hobbs (theatre) recently completed Teach for America's six-week training program. During the training, she taught second grade reading in the Atlanta Public Schools system, in addition to taking classes.

Scott Hordis (criminal justice) was hired as an insurance agent by Farmers Insurance.

Ashley Loeb (international studies, political science) recently returned from nearly a month in Haiti, where she volunteered at God's Littlest Angels Haitian Baby Ministries, an independent, non-denominational ministry founded to care for premature, malnourished and abandoned children.

Stephanie Van Der Wal (corporate communication) was hired by Mars Chocolate North America in Hackensack, N.J., as a customer logistics representative.

The Arrow yearbook is back! The 50-page Class of 2010 edition is finished and available to order. Preview the book at www.lycoming.edu/yearbook. Members of the class are depicted by their graduation photo.

You now have the ability to add pages to the yearbook, personalizing it with your own text and the photos and memories that matter most to you! It works like this: Purchase The Arrow as is, or with additional pages and include as many pictures and personal memories you want.

The new customization is an exclusive feature of KCI Custom Yearbooks. Should you need additional information, contact KCI at kci@customyearbooks.com.

For information on ordering copies of books 2009 and earlier, please call the Office of Student Programs and Leadership Development at (570) 321-4118.

To read a full listing of those in attendance at many of the weddings shown on this page, please visit www.lycoming.edu/alumni.

Barbie (Hoover) '95 and Jeffrey Todd Harbaugh, Oct. 8, 2011, at First United Methodist Church, Williamsport, Pa. A reception followed at the Genetti Hotel.

Anri (Weisel) '01 and Wes Hitchens, Oct. 9, 2011, in Princeton, N.J.

Jessica (Feenar) '03 and Shaun Boyer, July 17, 2010, at St. Agnes Catholic Church in Lock Haven, Pa. The reception was at the Genetti Hotel.

Tracy (Peterson) '03 and Mark Rice '97, Dec. 11, 2010, at Pine Street United Methodist Church, Williamsport, Pa.

Marsha (McQuate) '04 and Josh Bonn, July 8, 2011, at Lauxmont Farms in Wrightsville, Pa.

Ashley (Reminger) and Jason Sweeley '04, May 28, 2011, near State College, Pa.

Beth (Bartels) '04 and Joshua Zellers, Nov. 10, 2010.

Tiffany (Beltz) '05 and Tristan Wertman, July 30, 2011.

Sandra (Kirk) '07 and Todd Guerni, July 2, 2011, in Syracuse, N.Y.

Alyson (Zeigler) '07 and Kurt Balasick, Oct. 8, 2011.

Stephanie (Marra) '08 and Erik Kitzmiller, Aug. 14, 2010.

Jamie (Rowe) '08 and Steve Brown '10, July 23, 2011.

Ashley (Cless) '09 and Eric Roman, Sept. 3, 2011.

Nicole (Dayton) '09 and Jeremy Gonzalez, June 11, 2011, in Orefield, Pa.

Casey (Avsec) '10 and Joshua Troxler '12, Aug. 6, 2011, in Williamsport, Pa.

Joanna (Pallas) '11 and Jeffrey DeLong, July 22, 2011.

- 1 Kristen and James David Sleeper III '92, a son, James David IV, June 23, 2011. He joins sister, Avery, 3.
- 2 Jennifer and Wayne Johnson '95 have three new children, Seth, Samuel and Gloria. They joined the family in July and were adopted from the Ukraine. Pictured: Noah (1), Gracie (7), Seth (6), Gloria (1), Nathaniel (6), Joy (7), Samuel (3), Faith (4) and Hope (2)
- 3 Erica (Dolner) '96 and Christopher Vargo '94, a daughter, Leighann Hope, Sept. 11, 2011.
- 4 Charina and James Lumley '97, a son, Thomas Christian, Nov. 30, 2010.
- 5 Alison (Smith) '97 and Frank Sabatino, a son, Luke Francis, Feb. 13, 2011. He joins sister, Maya, 4.
- 6 Brenda (Bosser) '98 and John Soder III, a son, John Phillip "JP" IV, May 2, 2011. He joins sister, Madison Mary, 5.
- 7 Heather (Jacobs) '98 and Benjamin Deek, a daughter, Anna Madeline, Jan. 24, 2011.
- 8 Brandi and Thomas Horton '99, a son, Wayne Thomas, May 11, 2011.
- 9 Natalie (Klinger) '01 and Michael Bonislawski '95, a son, Zachary Todd, March 28, 2011.
- 10 Francesca and Joshua Albreck '02, a daughter, Cecilia Teresa, June 4, 2010. She joins brother, Damian, 4.
- 11 Stacy (Howarter) '02 and Brent Daugherty, a daughter, Addison Kate, Feb. 11, 2011. Her aunt is Kelly Howarter '06.
- 12 Anne Marie (Stehr) '02 and Michael Joshua Lookenbill '02, a son, Bennett Paul, June 20, 2011.
- 13 Heidi (LaBelle) '03 and Mark Watts, a daughter, Paige, May 14, 2011. She joins sister, Ayla.
- 14 Cristin and Glenn Mumme '03, a son, Andrew Joseph, July 4, 2011.
- 15 Tinika Robinson '04 and Jazmar Anderson, a son, Asa Arnold, March 25, 2011. He joins brother Amari.
- 16 Elizabeth (Werner) '04 and Joseph Peterson, a son, Levi Maxwell, July 30, 2011. He joins sister, Emma Jayne, 2.
- 17 Jennifer (Bennetch) '05 and Zachary Todd '05, a daughter, Delia Brielle, July 3, 2011.
- 18 Patricia (Spencer) '07 and Josh Williard '07, a daughter, Tiffani Lynne, May 2, 2011.
- 19 Jaime Gusler '09 and Joseph Lyons, a son, Colton Samuel, Jan. 18, 2011.

1929

Margaret (Schuster) Kiley, of Sarasota, Fla., Aug. 16, 2011.

1933

Paul K. Winner, of Williamsport, Pa., Sept. 28, 2011.

1939

Virginia (Berkstresser) Shoemaker, of Pinehurst, N.C., April 15, 2011.

1940

Catharine (Lewis) Efimiadi, of Salisbury, Md., Aug. 26, 2011.

1941

George W. Jarmoska, of West Chester, Pa., Sept. 4, 2011.

1941

Sam L. Turley, of Montoursville, Pa., March 20, 2011.

1941

William D. Elder, of Jersey Shore, Pa., Sept. 24, 2011.

1943

Jean (Christie) Robbins, of Montoursville, Pa., Oct. 6, 2011. Among survivors is her son, Larry Robbins '81.

1946

Charles E. Forney, of Cardiff-by-the-Sea, Calif., May 12, 2011.

1948

Harry L. Lytle, of South Williamsport, Pa., Sept. 8, 2011.

1950

James O. Moff, of Montoursville, Pa., Sept. 28, 2011.

1951

John B. Hoffer, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., July 18, 2011.

1952

Mary Ann (Crawley) O'Brien, of Camp Hill, Pa., Sept. 14, 2011.

1954

Betsy Lee (McKay) Commons, of Shelter Island, N.Y., June 28, 2011. Her maternal grandfather was Dr. John Long, former College president.

1958

Clarke P. Cleaver, of York, Pa., July 4, 2011.

FRIENDS

The Hon. Malcolm Muir, of Williamsport, Pa., July 22, 2011. He received an honorary degree from Lycoming in 2008.

Katherine W. Shimer, of Millington, Pa., June 26, 2011. She was a former director of publicity at the College.

Dr. Elmer B. Staats, of Washington, D.C., July 23, 2011. He received an honorary degree from Lycoming in 1982.

DEFERRED GIFTS

Deferred gifts offer creative ways to make a more significant impact than you may have thought possible. Here are four of the easiest and most popular ways to make a deferred gift:

IRAs: The Most Overlooked Option • Consider making Lycoming the beneficiary of your IRA. Your IRA can be an excellent—and tax-wise—deferred gift choice. If you leave your IRA to anyone other than your spouse or a charity, significant value may be lost to taxation.

Charitable Gift Annuities: Guaranteed Lifetime Income • Perhaps you would like a little more income than your investments are earning, but you are reluctant to sell appreciated stock because of the capital gain tax you will incur. Consider giving the appreciated stock to Lycoming.

Life Insurance • Consider making Lycoming the beneficiary of a new life insurance policy or one you no longer need. If you make Lycoming the owner—as well as beneficiary—of a policy, your policy payments become tax deductible.

Bequest Gifts • A bequest is one of the easiest ways to make a gift to Lycoming. You may decide to give a specific amount, a percentage of your estate, or all or part of what remains after others have been remembered.

To receive more information on these or other ways to make a difference for Lycoming, please contact Karen Sheaffer '74, planned giving officer, at (570) 321-4311 or sheaffer@lycoming.edu.

If these PEWS could TALK

Alexis Naugle '15, left, and Rita Sausmikat '15

By Justin Rathbun

President John Long and Michael Bond Rich laying the cornerstone of Clarke Chapel in 1939

As part of their First-Year Seminar course, History of Lycoming College, freshmen Alexis Naugle and Rita Sausmikat researched Clarke Chapel, which opened in 1939 and is one of the oldest buildings on campus. Using the primary sources available in the College Archives, the course is designed to allow students to take a closer look at Lycoming's history and transitions, from its founding in 1812 as an academy, through the 1970s.

The class was developed in conjunction with the College's bicentennial celebration. For one assignment, students worked in pairs, with each group researching the history of a particular campus building, looking at both the building's origins and its changes over time.

"I am learning different techniques and different ways of gathering information..."

Sausmikat, who has spent numerous hours in the chapel practicing piano and rehearsing as a member of the choir, absolutely loves the building and passionately believed that it was the one she and Naugle should delve into for their project.

"They were adamant about researching Clarke Chapel," said Alison Gregory '97, assistant professor and instructional services librarian, who co-teaches the course with Dr. Robert Larson, professor of history. "They did an outstanding job."

From their research, the duo learned that the building's namesake was Martha Clarke, an 1862 Williamsport Dickinson Seminary graduate. Her brother, Hopewell, a land baron who also attended the seminary, had left his estate to Clarke, who in turn, gave half her estate to the College, which used the money to help build the chapel. The facility was erected by Williamsport's Lundy Construction Co., at a cost of $135,000.

"What really surprised all of us, even our professors, was the fact that it had a dining hall in the lower level, below the chapel," said Sausmikat, a history major who aspires to become a museum curator or archivist. "We always thought that it was the chapel and music building. But it had a formal dining room, complete with a wait staff. It was very formal compared to the cafeteria today."

When the dining hall was relocated to its current location in the Wertz Student Center in 1959, the former dining space in the chapel was converted to music classrooms and offices. In the late 1970s, a Roman Catholic chapel and the campus ministry center were added to the ground level of Clarke Chapel. Recent renovations have included the addition of an acoustic shell and a four-foot stage extension. Their research also explored rumors that the building is haunted, which could not be confirmed.

"We are going to be living here for the next four years," said Naugle. "So it's really exciting to learn about all the different buildings on campus. And both professors have been great. They co-teach very well together. It's always fun to get two peoples opinions on one idea."

According to Naugle and Sausmikat, the class had the honor of reading several manuscript chapters from

"Lycoming College 1812-2012: On the Frontiers of American Education," a forthcoming book by Dr. John F. Piper Jr., dean and professor of history emeritus at Lycoming. He also joined the class on occasion to offer his vast knowledge of the College, where he has worked for more than 40 years, most recently as College historian.

"I have been thrilled about using a lot primary sources from the College Archives," said Sausmikat. "I am learning different techniques and different ways of gathering information that will be so useful later in life and for what I plan to do in my career. I have learned so much, it's unbelievable."

The lower level of Clarke Chapel served as the College's dining hall until 1959.

CHANGE SERVICE REQUESTED

LYCOMING COLLEGE
JOIN US FOR
ALUMNI
WEEKEND
MAY 11-13, 2012

Don't miss the marquee event of Lycoming's bicentennial celebration! The inaugural Alumni Weekend is set for May 11-13, 2012.

Among the activities:

- Live in the residence halls
- Take classes with your favorite faculty members
- Enjoy a beer and wine tasting with faculty and coaches
- Join alumni and friends for food, live music and memories on the Quad!
- And much more

Be sure to check the Alumni Weekend web site for updates on activities planned for this special event:
www.lycoming.edu/alumniweekend